

Mr. Constant Mouth takes on the Mulrooneys

Let's see. What's new today? Ah. College teachers going on strike. Librarians coming off strike. Auto workers going on strike. U.S. won't help with acid rain. Police demand return of capital punishment. Russians accuse U.S. of non-cooperation in their new "peace" overtures. Man stabs woman 48 times and is sentenced to three months.

Well, the magnificence of the world is unfolding in its accustomed manner.

But all is not lost. A black bishop from South Africa has been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. Eugene Whelan has not been sent to Italy. (Not because he couldn't speak Italian, which he couldn't, not to mention English, but because he was a Liberal.)

It must be giving Joe Clark, who has been stabbed in the back so often it's become a minor irritation, and has had his heart cut out and thrown to the wolves, a great deal of satisfaction to be the rope-man on the guillotine.

Feel some pity for poor old Eugene, and poor old Bryce Mackasey, who didn't get to go to that villa in Portugal. One of two things happened. Either they had too much pride to scuttle into a judgeship or the Senate, or they were too greedy to settle for something so small and so sordid. Your guess.

You may, believably, wonder what all that leads to. We shall see.

It's extremely difficult today to be an alert, aware, compassionate person when policemen are shot like rabbits, there is war all over the world, children are starving, men beat up their women, and you haven't even got your leaves raked.

As a sad, sad result, we are inclined to turn in upon ourselves, to blot out the horror and the violence and the brutality of society, and to lock ourselves into a little cupboard composed of money and "things" and "relations," hoping the nasties will go away. They won't.

Perhaps our wincing and flinching are an example of the human spirit trying to stay alive in a time when the brutishness of the Middle Ages looks like a Sunday School picnic, in comparison.

Perhaps it's something older than that: a retreat to the family, the cave, the tribe, when the earth shook and the great beasts howled their final agony. And man whimpered. Hey, that's pretty good, eh?

Don't worry. I'm not going to go on like a guru. I'm just trying to establish the fact, which every reader knows, that our own affairs become more important than a train wreck in Italy, a flood in India, or an outbreak of the dire rear in Hayfork Centre.

by Bill Smiley

To get to the point, the Mulrooneys are after me. Not Brian and Mila, bless their hearts. They can take a joke. They wouldn't try to rub me out. I don't think.

No, it's the double on Mulrooneys that are upset. I made an unfortunate remark in a column about "Mulrooney" sounding as though it was the other side of the tracks. It was about as funny as an old rubber boot. But I did applaud the lady Mila, for many aspects of her character.

Now this. In my old paper, where I was editor, appears this scurrilous bit:

"Re Bill Smiley's column

So far as Mila Mulrooney and a 'name sounding from the wrong side of the tracks' is served up by 'Mr. Constant Mouth, 1944, Bill Smiley (ex-nazi war camp nightmare)";

"A Mulrooney myself, I ponder "constant-mouth's deeds of heroism or heroism' not.

"And do not make sport of his torture, nor judge his (imprisoned utterings) he now sings: 'fell well' or 'He that cannot praise.'"

It is signed: "Barbara Mulrooney, Clan Mulrooney, 3-dimensional writer-poet-artist humanitarian."

What in the name of whatever is a three-dimensional writer? Anyway, there were a lot of... and... 's in the published letter, suggesting it was originally libellous or worse. Just don't plant a bomb in my bathroom, or I'll have the whole lot of the Smileys down on yiz Mulrooneys and we lived on the other side of the tracks, too. When we felt like it.

But closer to home, somebody hates me. It's sort of nice: I'm sick of being a good, gentle, kind man like Bill Davis, Prime Minister of Ontario, who was also described as shifty, ambiguous, slippery, ruthless and so on. Media tripe.

A man from a neighboring township, wrote me a hate letter this fall. It was supposed to be witty, but devolved into sheer malice. It was an attack on teachers.

"I'll quote only bits. Most of it is libel. "Willie, you remind me of the provincial handle on the thundermug—always there but never in... You, along with that effete corps of over-rated and over-paid so-called teachers, are always articulating some complaint about municipal, provincial and federal legislature."

I won't bore you with the rest of it, because it is boring. It suggests that none of us has the guts to tackle the establishment, or run for office.

Robert S. O'Neill, I was a town councillor when you were wetting your Pampers. I have been challenging the Establishment for years, in this column and face to face.

I have been president of a large tourist association. President of a publishers' association. Treasurer of the local Red Cross; Member of the Library Board. Member of the church board.

I am tired. Of you and the Mulrooneys. Get stuffed, both of you.

WE DRIVE YOU HAPPY™
