

GOLF GOES TO SCHOOL

Physical education is getting more interesting all the time. Georgetown District High School's double gym was turned into a hardwood fairway recently when North Halton Golf and Country Club pro Don Findley showed students the business end of a golf club and taught them the real meaning of "swing." Here dapper Don watches while one of his "instant golf" pupils chip from one of the mats. Golf clinics were held at the school four days a week for two weeks.

Membership Increase, North Halton Nearer Private Club

North Halton golf manager Elmer Carter said in a letter to members this month that increased membership this year has brought the club closer to realizing its objective of becoming a private club.

Men's memberships at North Halton are up from 218 last year to 382 this year, and ladies' memberships are up from 75 to 118.

"One of the main objectives of the club has always been to become a private club," Carter said. "With the increase of membership this year the board feels that we are coming closer to realizing this objective."

RESTRICTING GREEN FEES

He said that booking for next year's tournaments from outside groups will be curtailed. There will be some outside tournaments this year which were booked during last season.

"When these were booked we could not anticipate the increase in membership we have attained this year," he said. In the past the club has accepted green fees, however, these will be restricted to members' guests on weekends.

One of the main reasons for the upsurge in membership at North Halton is likely the fact that it expanded from nine to eighteen holes a year ago.
