Recover Body of Drowned Scout

Two weeks to the day after he was swept to his death from an overturned canoe near Bala the body of Richard Paul Scializzi, 19, of Milton, was recovered in 65 feet water Saturday afternoon.

The body was buried at a private interment service in Milton Monday morning. Funeral services had been held last week.

RESCUE TEAM

Recovery of the body was accomplished after a seven man team led by the boy's father, Otello Scializzi, of Milton and Martin Franchetto, district commissioner for the Oakville district Boy Scout Association, moved into the search operation Saturday morning. The youth drowned while on a camping expedition with Milton Rovers.

The body was found by two members of a five man rescue team from the Hamilton Air-Sea Rescue Unit.

They were prepared to stay at the scene of the drowning a week if necessary in a bid to locate the body.

STUDY CURRENTS

Franchetto said that the search party arrived at 11.30 a.m. Saturday. They spent an hour and a half studying the currents with logs and a partly filled plastic bag. They discovered the bag kept going in circles about 300 feet west of Flat Rock Falls.

As a result of these studies and information gained from provincial police divers, they launched the search, and succeeded in finding the body about an hour later, less than 125 feet from where it entered the water.
