

SINGING AND SIZZLING

Georgetown Barbershoppers Jim Turnbull (left) and Dick Packer work on the SPEBSQSA assembly line turning out baconburgers at their booth on the infield at the Georgetown Fall Fair Saturday. The Barbershoppers put their tonsils in gear during the afternoon and did some singing in the rain. Strangely nobody requested Raindrops are Falling On My Head.

Despite a heavy downpour at noon, skies cleared long enough for people to throng to the park, only to be rained on again, and again. But in between there was time for children to have their midway rides, refreshment booths were well patronized and the day wasn't a complete loss.

Two well attended services were held in Limehouse Presbyterian Church last Sunday. Rev. Marshall Jess B.A. of Collingwood was guest preacher and brought two inspiring messages. The choir under Mrs. Bert Benton's leadership with Mrs. Roughley at the organ led the services, with organ and piano duets at the close of each service. The W.A. ladies provided lunch in the basement after the evening service and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Quite a number from here attended the unveiling and dedication of a plaque in the Park in Georgetown by the Georgetown Fair Board in memory of the late T. Harding Price, a former president and long term director of the board who died last winter. Rev. F. N. Young, B.A., dedicated the plaque and son Gordon unveiled it.

Mrs. A. C. Patterson and Mr. Thomas Given were winners at a euchre sponsored by Scouts and Cubs committee in Limehouse Memorial Hall on Saturday evening. A box social was held afterwards.

Weatherman's Prank Drops Fair Receipts by $1,000

A perfect fall day — until noon — and expectations for an all-time attendance record at Georgetown fall fair disappeared on Saturday.

Fair directors said gate receipts were down over a thousand dollars from last year. But a financial loss was compensated by reduced prize money payments, particularly in the horse show where many events had to be cancelled.

The hall exhibit was a fair highlight, and drew admiring comments from everyone. Flowers, fruit and vegetables, crafts and fanciwork, paintings, institute displays, baking and school exhibits were in abundance.

It was one of the few times in the fair's over a hundred years that Georgetown hadn't had a perfect fall day. Directors are already planning a bigger and better show for 1971.

They were well inspected by a large Friday night crowd.

Girls pipe band and majorettes paraded to the park but the parade of decorated bicycles and tricycles was cancelled out, to the disappointment of dozens of entrants.
