

15c Monthly More for Phones in January

Georgetown and area residents on the 877 Bell Telephone exchange will for the most part pay an increase of 15 cents a month according to the new Bell rate schedule. The new schedule was approved last week by the Canadian Transport Commission.

The increase granted to Bell amounted to just over half of that sought for the system.

PRIVATE LINES

Private line subscribers on the 877 exchange will have their basic rate increased from $4.65 to $4.80.

Two party service will increase from $3.60 to $3.80.

Multi-party service, rate will go from $3.25 to $3.35.

Extensions have been hiked from 1.25 to $1.35.

BUSINESS PHONES

Area manager Arnold Blackford told The Herald that business telephones will be increased here from $10.50 to $10.00.

Multi-party business phone service will go to $5.30 from $5.10.

Switchboard trunk lines will cost $16.35. The current rate is $15.75.

All business extensions will increase 10 cents from $1.85 to $1.95.

FIRST OF YEAR

The changes will be the first in Bell's basic structure of local exchange rates since 1968. In September 1969 the CTC approved increases in rates for Ontario and Quebec long distance charges.

In its application made last June and in public hearings, Bell said that costs which had occurred since its last approval for a rate increase would have added $45 million to its expense this year.

The increases will go into effect January 1.
