

Ellis Skips Rink to Zone Curling Win

by Ralph Hawes

Was Farm Manager Here Then Cope-Chat Employee

A former Georgetown man, and a Brampton resident since 1963, William Taylor died on November 29. A resident of 52 Union St., he was 84.

Mr. Taylor, a native of Inch-berry, Morayshire, Scotland, came to Canada with his wife, Catherine Mitchell and their sons Bob and Donald in 1927 and settled in Glen Avon, Saskatchewan. In 1935 they moved to Toronto and then to this district where Mr. Taylor became farm manager at the D. E. Killgour farm at Silvercreek.

Moving to town, he was employed with Dominion Seed House, then at the old lower mill of Abbott Provincial Paper until it closed, and then for 16 years was a Cope-Chat-Charter-son employee in Brampton. He ended his working years at the age of 81.

He leaves his wife, sons Bob of Altadena, California and Donald, Oakville, and two grand-children and 3 great-grandchildren, all in California. A brother James lives in Elgin and a sister Mrs. Jessie Young in Bilsington near Glasgow.

Rev. John McBride conducted the funeral service at the McKillop Funeral Home and pallbearers were Mike Gallagher and Carl (Buck) Anderson, Brampton, Clare Westall, Larry Westall and Hans Schneider, Toronto and Bruce Collins, Georgetown. Interment was in Brampton Cemetery.

We feel this week we should perhaps give a tip of the hat to three very deserving Legion members. Yes, congratulations must go to Zone Sports Chairman Joe Ashton, Branch 120 Sports Officer Hank Russell and Bruce, Appointed, Collins, for their part in making the Zone B7 curling the success that it was. The one gripe we have was the indifference, apathy and unconcern of the Zone members and, in particular, Branch 120 members in this event.

With the Zone curling championship on the line, we had expected to see the Branch and the curling rink full of fans from each branch cheering their teams on to victory, but no, a mere handful of people were on hand to see the final result of a day of keen contest.

ON EVEN KEEL

Branch 120's president Norm Ward, spent most of the day at the curling along with executive members Frank Nicholson, Hank Russell and Bruce were busy keeping things on an even keel from early a.m. until everything was over.

Hank worked along with Joe Ashton for the whole day, Zone Commander, Charles Heath was on hand in the morning and afternoon. Third vice president Ontario Provincial Command, David Coppernault, found time out of his extremely busy Legion life to be on hand to congratulate the winner.

SLIM LEAD

With ten teams from the Zone competing, competition was keen. At the close of the second game Georgetown A team was a mere 1 1/2 points ahead.

Prizes at the Saturday night dance went to Brian Green, Mel Wilkie Lorue Coates, Kitchener and his brother Roy Coates, Streetsville. Bob and Cory looked after the music. Next Saturday the Country Rhythm Boys will be on hand.

MOTORIST: During the holiday season, you need extra care when driving. Pre-occupied Christmas shoppers and dazzling Christmas lights will be testing your safe driving tactics. Always keep a special lookout for those last minute shoppers — expect the unexpected — and be prepared to stop in a hurry if you have to.
