Mrs. Vickery's home was decorated with a well dressed tree and various decorations that had been made by her and her children. During the business meeting a letter of appeal for toys from the Kinettes was read and a motion to give toys for the cause was approved by all members present. Each member donated 50c and Deanne Mount and Kathleen Vickery were elected to purchase an assortment of toys. It was felt that this small service would enable others to have a little pleasure at Christmas as well as those present at the meeting, since Christmas is the season for giving.

Following the business meeting Mrs. Vickery presented her cultural programme entitled Home Building and Planning. She explained her theory on the title by saying that men built the houses and women built the home by the way they planned the family life. She felt that an explanation on how to build houses was perhaps a little boring for ladies, so using her own family as an example members were told how at Christmas time she and her family sang Carols together whenever they felt in the mood regardless of where they were. Members present were then asked to each take a copy of some carols that Mrs. Vickery had typed and with taped music playing in the background everyone broke into song. Ten well known carols were sung.
