Pesky Sparrow Hawk Back Again for Meal

Much to my surprise and many others the snow came and stayed.

The snowmobile operators have had a ball and the skiers also. Six snowmobiles were on our property over the weekend. They were all Bombardier Ski-Doods.

My prediction regarding Christmas weather will have to remain a secret, four snowfalls that gave us 12 inches on the level at our place would not correspond with it anyway.

LIGHTS BEAUTIFUL
The Christmas lights at some of the homes this year are beautiful to see, two down our way are on the corner of Market and Maple Avenue and at the corner of Main and Maple Ave. There are many others that are outstanding that people see as they drive around Georgetown. They are very much appreciated by people who drive by. It all helps to brighten up our Christmas.

The Grey Squirrel Mystery
It's uncanny just how the grey squirrels find food that they buried in snow several days before. Apparently what they can't eat they hide. They are hid all over the lawn and as one watches them do this, one wonders just how they find them after mother nature covers them with 4 or 5 inches of fresh snow.

This small animal just hops over the snow sniffing as he goes, then he will stop and dig, when he arrives at the peanuts only 1/3 of the squirrel can be seen.

Apparently there is only one answer.

This smart little animal must saturate the food with some kind of scent from his glands in his mouth but from my point of view it's still amazing just how he can pick up the scent through 5 inches of fresh snow.

As this is being written one is eating uncooked peanuts on our kitchen window sill and two more are feeding on the plywood top of our dog run. It's nice to see them and they are very interesting to watch.

SPARROW HAWK
The predator was back for his dinner yesterday (Sunday). As I said before, we know he has to eat, but it's our wish that he take his dinner somewhere else.

VENISON FOR CHRISTMAS
Ian Armstrong and family of Georgetown spent their Christmas holidays with relations in Baneroff.

Bill Hatch of R. R. 1, Georgetown, is in Halifax for a ten day visit with his parents. As I said before fresh lobster and salmon and also venison would probably be Bill's choice for his Christmas dinner. To be sure I would choose the same thing, especially when I could have turkey and chicken, once a week.

More about Bill's holiday at home here in my lunch box when he arrives back home.

NOVEMBER RAINBOW
Several weeks ago about mid November found me fly fishing at Curt Church's trout club in the Hockley Valley. The trout pond was 2/3 frozen over. The previous night had been cold. The elevation to quote Curt is 1,400 feet. It was mid-afternoon and a cold drizzle of rain was falling.

The trout were following the first two flies I used but never took. So, I changed to a No. 6 dark may nymph. This fly sinks to a depth of 4 feet while I can count to ten slowly. Using this method I caught and released 6 nice rainbow about 13 inches long.

Just about that time my wife Beaver, called me to say that the chicken was ready and also the coffee. I was sort of cold anyway so I left the dock and was wading over when a 1/2 ton truck drove up.

We found out his load consisted of 500 plump rainbow that had just come from the hatchery. They were released in the pond for future fishing success. None of the trout were under 10 inches and up to 13".

They sure churned the water up for quite some time.

So... we all had some chicken and coffee to top off the day.

That's all for this week, so enjoy the outdoors. And a very happy and prosperous New Year to you all.
