Natural gas can help you tap a more dependable, more economical source of hot water.

When you connect your hot water tap to a Natural Gas water heater, you're equipping it to handle all the requirements of an active modern family.

A sink full of dishes, hot showers, laundry, it's all in a morning's work for a Natural Gas water heater. That's because Natural Gas heats water quickly and bounces back to heat more. And a Natural Gas water heater will continue to do this long after others have given up.

Add to all this, the fact that Natural Gas is always there, "on tap", just like your water supply, and you can see why more people switch to Natural Gas for hot water than to any other system.

If your hot water tap isn't measuring up to the demands of your family, connect it to a Natural Gas water heater. It's clean. It's dependable. It's economical. In fact, it's got all the right connections.

United Gas
as sure and as pure
as the sun.

Exciting news

For all residential customers of United Gas that do not use natural gas for water heating, homes with an inactive gas service and homes adjacent to an existing gas main which has been installed on that street for a period over one year as of April 1, 1970.
