I know you have noticed the beautiful crochet work displayed in the Towne Sewing Centre. All the pieces are the handiwork of Mrs. P. Pocock.

Mrs. Pocock is teaching crocheting for the Y every Tuesday night in her home. This 6 week course proved very successful last fall. Mrs. Pocock commented that she was just thrilled with the progress her students made. They did so well that they were able to crochet gifts for Christmas.

OWN DESIGNS

Mrs. Pocock doesn't use any instruction books. She designs not only her own patterns but her stitches as well. I asked Mrs. Pocock if she had taught before. "For 35 years" was her reply.

The Pococks moved to Georgetown last fall. Reverend Pocock is a retired Anglican minister. They have seven children and ten grandchildren.

Mrs. Pocock takes a keen interest in every handcraft. She does smocking, paints in oils, works with leather and does needle point. She even has her own loom for weaving and knit for ceramics. Mrs. Pocock has won many prizes for talents.

OFFSETS BOREDOM

Mrs. Pocock said many people, especially housewives are returning to handwork. It offsets boredom and gives one a real sense of accomplishment. In my estimation, Mrs. Pocock should know.

Plan One Act Plays On Cable TV Station

Georgetown Little Theatre set their wheels in motion for 1971 in grand fashion — 28 members attended the January 5 general meeting at the Nicholls'. This is a record attendance for a business meeting. Members welcomed three new members, Margaret Ellis and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Van Alphen.

One of the items on the agenda was a report from the committee formed to co-ordinate projects for the local TV station, which they would like to present once a month. The membership backed them up by passing a motion that they support the committee in any way possible to make these projects a success.

The committee, Linda Nicholls, Ron Hill and Ian Lee said they hope to have the first one ready by the end of January.

Also reporting was the dance committee: Eric Ming, Ian Lee, Lillian Barker, Gary McCrae and Pat Roberson. They are busy organizing a gala Theatre Ball to be held March 20 at the Georgetown Golf and Country Club.

This particular project calls for the participation of as many members as possible. They hope to include members who are not involved in the regular productions.

Assisting the group will be Max English, one of Georgetown Little Theatre's patrons.

These projects will include, among other things, one act plays which will be chosen for their adaptability to the local facilities and will be rewritten and produced specifically for these facilities to ensure the best possible standard. Members are looking forward to this new and interesting experience.

Campers Outdoors

Some 85 adults and children, representing 18 Georgetown Fireflies Club families made the best of the winter conditions at a toboggan and skating party at Rosslake, Sunday.

The afternoon included a hay ride, as well as tobogganing, sledding, skiing and skating. The dads came out second best in an impromptu hockey game. All escaped frost bite by slipping indoors just in time and enjoying hot dogs, hot chocolate and coffee afterwards.
