CONSCIENCE CAUSES CONFLICT

One of the most annoying qualities with which man has been afflicted is the conscience. How much more simple and pleasant life would be were it not for that small, niggling voice that cannot be drowned out no matter how loudly one's other voices shout.

Constantly shouting are the voices of our sensual nature, urging us on to venal sins.

"Go ahead, have another piece of chocolate cake with whipped cream. It won't hurt to get off the diet for one day. Life isn't worth this torture. And I'll swear those scales are wrong." And the little voice mutters, "Liar." And you hear it.

"Come on, one more drink won't hurt you. You've always been able to handle your booze. So you'll have a little hang-over in the morning. So what?"

And the little voice whispers, "Idiot." And you hear it.

Then there is the voice of rationalization, not so noisy but resonant and insidious. We have all heard it.

Mother has, "I'd feel far more like getting a good dinner ready if I just lay down and watched that afternoon movie."

Father has, "I don't get enough exercise. It would do me a lot more good, and I'd probably be a better Christian if I got out golfing in God's wonderful world, instead of sitting around in a stuffy old church with a bunch of stuffy people."

Student has, "If I study all evening for my exam, I'll only tire my mind and get all uptight and probably study the wrong things. I'd be far better off to go to a movie and have a fresh, open mind tomorrow."

Kid has, "Well, if all the other kids are saying that word, there can't be much wrong with it. Why shouldn't I?"

But lurking in every one of them is that nasty little voice which never shouts, but always comes through loud and clear. It takes half the fun out of life.

May is a terrible month for a man with a conscience. All the voices seem to be shouting at once. I'm not much for astrology, but surely Satan was born in May.

Every May I go through a terrible conflict that would psychologically devastate the average man.

Opening weekend of the trout season, in this benighted climate, inevitably coincides with the final disappearance of the last iceberg on the property.

There you are. All those lovely fish waiting to match wits with you. And all that accumulated, filthy muck lying around waiting to be raked up.

There lies the golf course, greening, beckoning, shouting that your game is going to improve immeasurably this year, if you'd just get an early start. And there even closer, smack in the middle of your wife's favourite flowerbed, lies the neighbour's fence, felled by the winds of winter, whining to be propped up for the tenth annual season.

As the month progresses, the

Too Bad Anthem Sitters Lack Respect For Their Country

16 Victoria Cres.
Dear Sir:
Thursday evening (May 13), I attended a Variety Show held at Stewarttown Senior School, and put on by the students and teachers there. It has been only one of many events in which parents, students and staff cooperate. It encourages and promotes a rapport which I think is unique in this and surrounding district. Teachers work and communicate with these youth, and they, in turn, put forth more effort. Their school motto of "At Stewarttown We Care" is apt; I heartily commend them all.

One sad remark is that it was too bad the adults who remained seated during the playing of our National Anthem, did not seem to be displaying the same respect that the younger generation have, for the country in which they are residing.

Respectfully,
H. Lee
