Clinic Gets Special Blood For Surgery

All the special requests for blood for heart surgery and other operations this week at various Toronto hospitals including the Hospital for Sick Children were filled at a successful Georgetown Red Cross blood donor clinic in Holy Cross auditorium, Monday.

Attendance was just two short of the 400 mark. There were 45 rejects, mainly due to low blood count, making 353 actual donations. Those offering included 46 first time donors.

AIM FOR $00

By comparison, last year's June clinic had only 326 attend and 290 donations collected.

The Georgetown Red Cross largest clinic was in September of 1970 when 430 showed up to give blood.

A Georgetown branch spokesman said they hope to have an attendance of 500 at a clinic in the near future, a total which should not be out of reach for a community of this size.

Tim Chisholm climbs out of the Georgetown Community Swimming Pool after officially launching his splash season with a plunge on opening day, Saturday. The pool used to be open only during the summer holiday months, but a change in policy by the Georgetown Recreation Committee last year extended the season to three months, including June.

Discuss Program to Prune, Spray Georgetown's Maples

"Georgetown has not had much tree maintenance in a long, long time," Norman J. Scott, of Canadian Horticultural Consultants, told a committee meeting Thursday night. Scott had been asked to appear to discuss the problem of blight on the old maple trees in town, and the condition of the trees in general. He urged the dead and diseased wood be cut out of the trees, as the first step, pointing out the town could do that themselves. Spraying would also be necessary, for a period of five years, said the consultant. He stated his company could do a survey of the trees in three or four days at a cost of $150 a day. "If we can do it in two days, so much the better, we're very busy." He estimated the cost of a survey and report at $500 to $700.

WEAKENING

He explained that insects suck the goodness out of the new growth, and the tree starts dying back. He said the trees, once in a natural environment, now have sewers, and sidewalks beneath them, thus lowering

Dominion Census About Half Way In Georgetown

The dominion census is about 48 percent complete in Georgetown and area according to district supervisor Douglas Fendley. His team of 23 census representatives are currently in the process of picking up the census packets they dropped off at households prior to June 1.

He told The Herald yesterday he hopes to have all the forms picked up before June 19.

The census workers are taking the complete forms back to the district office in downtown Georgetown where they edit and compile them and then forward the information to the Toronto region office. At the Toronto region office the information is put on microfilm.

CONFIDENTIAL

"I emphasize that all the answers are kept in the strictest confidence and are not available to any government department outside the Dominion Bureau of Statistics" Fendley said.

He said that each of the local census workers have had six half day training sessions on the census process in general, and two additional days on the census in the agricultural area.

ANSWER ALL

They have been learning how to assist anyone who might need help, and how to quickly check out the forms to see that all the questions have been answered" said Fendley. "We are not interested in the answer itself, just that the answers are there."

The Georgetown and area census (District 515) got underway May 25.

This area extends from the Esqueing - Chinguacousy Town Line on the east to the 6th Line on the west. The Baldwin Sideroad and the Ashgrove Sideroad are the north and south boundaries.

BROTHERS FOUND SHOT ON OUTSKIRTS OF TOWN

Elect Local Contractor to High Post in Lions Club

Fred Zorge became the first Georgetown Lions club member to be elected to the post of District Governor, June 2, at the District Convention in Kingston.

It makes him one of a select group of 490 district governors in the whole world. The District covers Halton, Peel, Wentworth and Brant Counties, and is one of the smallest districts of 11 in Ontario.

Last year Fred was deputy-district governor and the year before that Zone Chairman. Fred gives credit to his local club for achieving this post. "I had to cover 35 clubs while campaigning and each time a large delegation from this club went with me" he commented.

Fred Zorge joined the Georgetown club in 1969, just two years after moving to town and starting his own construction business. He was president of the club in 1965 and 1966.

With his wife and four young children, Kerry, Colleen, Maureen and Michael Patrick, he has taken up residence in the rectory adjoining the church on Guelph Street.

Jim Court, rector's warden, introduced Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher and the children at the coffee hour, and thanked Rev. L. V. Pocock, a retired clergyman living in Georgetown, for filling in as rector for two months during vacancy.

The bodies of Randall Jeffrey Sill, 23, and Gregory Bruce Sill, 20, both of Ialington were found by Constable Douglas Ormsby of the North Halton OPP detachment over a quarter of mile off the Esqueing - Chinguacousy Town Line.

Ormsby was a member of a search party organized by the North Halton OPP after an abandoned car had been found by a police officer early Saturday. The Upper Canada College tract of land includes about 1,000 acres, much of it covered with young fir trees.

MISSED FRIDAY

The brothers, had been reported missing by their families Friday evening.

Constable Douglas Ford of the Chinguacousy police found the abandoned car at 2:55 a.m. Saturday.

When a check of the ownership of the car tied the vehicle in with the missing men, North Halton OPP was contacted and a search for the men organized. Because of the darkness the search was suspended until daylight.

Inspector R. N. Williams of the criminal investigation branch of the North Halton OPP said the two bodies were

THREE TONS OF CLOTHING

Sorting, Transportation Problems Facing Bourques

The cry for help is out from the Bourque family who are smothering under the three tons of clothes, the response to their drive for food and clothing for the Cree Indians in Kasabonika, in northern Ontario.

The response has been so successful that they are now faced with two big problems. After work, Mr. J. Bourque 131 Raylawn is single handedly trying to sort out three tons of clothing in the Rose Room above the arena, and desperately needs some other hands to do the job. He also needs boxes for packing. Mrs. Bourque has all the food in her basement, and daughter Mrs. Gloria Warren, RR 2, is busy writing letters and organizing the drive.

NEED A TRUCK

The next big hurdle to be overcome is the transportation of all the collected goods to Downsview air station before July 16. This family cannot afford to rent trucks to take the goods to the air station & are seeking help from individuals or organizations.

Al Martin, bank manager at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in the Market Centre has been made president of the organization now formed to help the Cree Indians, and will be happy to take any donations to help cover the transportation costs.

AIR LIFT

The food and clothing will be flown up to Kasabonika by the Air Reserve Squadron at Downsview. Captain Norman Bigg of the squadron, who lives at 4 Eden Place in town read of the Bourque family's plea for the Indians, and arranged this airlift.

COCKTAIL FOR TWO

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Skinner, 85 Deirax Blvd., have a new house guest, a grey and green female cockatill.

The bird turned up at their house last Sunday, finally landing on Mrs. Skinner's head. Mr. Skinner has built a cage for it, and tried to find an owner, but it is still at their house unclaimed.

LAI D AN EGG

The Skinners know the gender of the bird because it laid an egg, on Wednesday, but pecked it to pieces. They had named it Harry, but quickly changed it to Harriet.

The owner of the pet shop in Moore Park Plaza identified the bird as a cockatill, which sounds more like a pre-dinner drink than a bird.

Harriet was Harry until she laid an egg
