

Georgetown Witnesses Off To London for Assembly

"We're off!" Mel Taylor was announcing the en masse departure of the Georgetown Congregation for the "Divine Name" District Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses at London's Western Fairgrounds, July 28 to August 1.

"We're heading for the fairgrounds to learn more about the race for the prize of life," he added. Most Kingdom Halls throughout all Southern Ontario will be practically vacant for the five days as 12,000 delegates are expected to converge on the London location. "Conventions are part of our way of life," Mr. Taylor continued. "These are serious seminars of education, beneficial for the entire family, young and old. These are times when many gatherings of anything more than a handful end up in a demonstration or riot, it's a pleasure for the family to be part of a crowd where the police aren't even needed. We are having assemblies in many locations this summer, and every one of them is a demonstration of the fact that peace works - if we really want to make it work."

The five-day program will be a series of lectures, practical demonstrations, and full-length, costumed plays, all for the purpose of showing how the Bible and some of its outstanding events relate to modern life. Husbands and wives will be instructed on making a success of marriage, young people will be guided to find a productive and responsible place in society, and all present will be aided to strengthen the ties of family involvement.

"That's why we're all going," Mr. Taylor continued. "In these last days when the entire trend is away from responsibility, whether in the community or the family, we don't allow ourselves to be carried along in the vacuum. We look forward to a stable life in a happy world of God's making, and the more we can prepare ourselves for it, the better."
