471 Offer Blood At Record Clinic

Special requests for blood for heart surgery in Toronto on September 14 and 15 were filled at a very successful Red Cross blood donor clinic in Georgetown on Monday. Attendance was 471.

There were 47 rejects, making it a total of 424 donations, of which 80 were first timers. Among those attending there were members of the Lions Club and other organizations, the Georgetown Volunteer Ambulance Service, clergy, doctors and bank managers.

"The results show that the people of Georgetown and district really have a heart and it ticks," a Red Cross spokesman commented.

As December 6 has been set for the next clinic, maybe Georgetown will reach the record 500 donors then, especially if some of the veteran donors will come back to the clinics.

Protests 'Unsightly Mess'

Peter Bowman, the persistent critic of the Toronto International Dragway, had another problem with a neighbour when he appeared at Esquering council, Monday night.

He said his neighbour across the road, on the 6th line seems to have started a scrap yard. He claimed there are 5 or 6 graders, and 4 or 5 dump trucks in various states of disrepair, on the property.

MANY MORE Acting-reeve Len Cox said there was a by-law prohibiting any new scrap yards in the township.

Bowman said two graders used to be parked there in the spring and fall, but there were many more there all summer. "It's an unsightly mess", he added. The building inspector was instructed to investigate.

Test Radio Controlled Plane Skills

A number of Georgetown residents are included in a group of hobbyists who fly radio controlled model planes.

And this Saturday, they are having a "Fly for Fun" day at their meeting place on 17 Sideroad, near Allos Church, on property owned by Andrew Kostjuk.

Unless bad weather interferes, in which case it will be postponed until Sunday, members will be competing in such events as spot landing, touch and go, bombing, speed and "under the limbo".

Organized a year ago, the model flying club has some 12 Georgetown members, with others from neighbouring centres. Ken Fluney, 21 Raylawn Crescent is secretary-treasurer and Peter Jenkins, 165 Raylawn, safety representative.
