Blake's tough stand on American investment. An NDP government would place an export surcharge on natural resources, ensure that minerals are processed in Ontario, and require American corporations to live up to a corporate "code of behaviour" requiring them to disclose their full financial position before laying off workers. Corporations would have to convince an NDP government the lay-offs are just-for displaced employees. Gelok has also attacked the Davis government's 130 pieces of new legislation as electionoriented "death-bed repentance legislation". He says pollution fines in Ontario average $353, and that the New Democrats would "put real teeth in the legislation", with stiffer fines. Gelok has outlined his party's
