

Live 'Cinderella' A Thrill For TV, Movie Generation

Wicked stepmother Vera Macdonald sounds off to Cinderella Laz Fisher while stepsisters Joanne Grant, Helene Artuso and Jean Wakefield listen.

Some Georgetown Little Theatre members had to learn a little choreography for Cinderella. The dancers are Derek and Pat Joynea and John Hopkins and Diane Barber.

Georgetown Little Theatre's Christmas children's presentation of Cinderella didn't turn into a pumpkin. Instead this fantasyland vehicle provided eye-brightening entertainment for over 700 some-times-audience some-times participants, of course most of them in the Junior age group.

Overflow from the Saturday 2 o'clock matinee came back for the 4 o'clock offering and created the third straight full house. Friday night's performance was in front of a mixed adult-youngsters crowd, and the 100 plus who watched Saturday's show were, for the most part, Brown-ups.

All four performances were on the Wrigglesworth Public School stage.

A highlight for the small types was when some of them were given a chance to try on Cinderella's glass slipper during the hunt for Prince Charming's wife to be. Liz Fisher and Dan Wagstaffe were she and he.

Don't Panic In Pea Soup

Fog is a common hazard for motorists this time of the year. It can be expected in city traffic and on expressways as well as rural roads, warns John Atkinson, President and Managing Director of the Allstate Insurance Companies of Canada.

Atkinson offers the following advice for fog-bound motorists:

- Don't try to peer through fog. It won't be possible to see very far, and the strain will only increase tension and tiredness. Instead, motorists should concentrate on the right hand side of the road. This will enable them to
- keep their bearings and to proceed cautiously
- Use headlights - day or night. The low beam gives drivers the best visibility if the fog is heavy.
- Tap the brakes when preparing to stop or slow down. The tailights will flash and warn the drivers behind, and the car will tend to handle better on a potentially wet road surface.
- Most important - take plenty of time. When conditions are so bad that safe driving is impossible, pull well off the road and stop. Park in a safe place until the fog clears.

"Driving in the fog is always dangerous. If motorists must drive in it, they should exercise the greatest caution," Atkinson adds.
