Some to Get Dentures For Cut Rate Prices

Halton County's social and family services department has made a private deal with two dentists in the county for lower prices on dentures for welfare recipients. They cost about $200.

James Gray, the department's director, said the arrangement was made between the county and the two dentists without the help of the Halton Peel Dental Association.

At the August meeting of the county's social and family services committee Gray focused attention on the difference in denture costs to his department and its Metropolitan Toronto equivalent. Halton was paying about $350 while the same work in Toronto cost $125.

REDUCED FEES
Gray wrote to the dental association asking for a list of dentists who would accept reduced fees for denture work. The association rejected the request as against the code of ethics of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons.

Gray said he has since discovered part of the reason for the vastly lower costs in Toronto. "There the agency uses dental clinics, with a large volume of business, which do extractions and dentures only. They have six to eight chairs," he said.

NOT SUFFICIENT
He also said Halton could not provide a sufficient volume of business for this type of operation.

Gray looks forward to even lower costs with the proposed provincial approval of denturists supplying dentures direct to those who need them.

Denturists make the dentures, under present provincial law, they must supply the dentures only to dentists as ordered. The denturists have been engaged in a campaign to gain the right to sell direct to the public, maintaining they can provide equal service at a substantially lower cost.

Georgetown will be fortunate in having them as part of the show at the skating carnival planned for February 12 and 13 at Georgetown arena. Other guest artists will be here too, with reserved seat tickets going on sale January 31 at the arena box office.
