

Tired of Hearing People Talk About Pollution?

by Sue Robertson, SWEEP Laborer, 1972 in the Brampton Times

I'm sick and tired of hearing about pollution," said the man as he threw his cigarette package out the window of his untaxed car, en route to the Terra Cotta conservation area.

I'm sure many of us feel as though we are being overzealous prophets of doom, while others, who rarely pay attention to the world around them, haven't even heard of pollution.

My summer job with project SWEEP (Students Working in an Environmental Enhancement Program) has provided ample evidence that the crusade against pollution must continue. The Credit Valley Conservation Authority, for whom I work this summer, has jurisdiction over some of the most beautiful country a province could ask for.

Every morning, an official SWEEP truck takes us from our headquarters at Meadowvale to our work site for the day. Although one may see the same scenery day after day, its beauty and variety are continually impressive. It is definitely not an area to be taken for granted or abused.

Project SWEEP, while it doesn't intend to create dramatic changes in its 10 weeks of operation, it does attempt to introduce students to methods of improving the environment as well as providing paid employment.

PROJECTS VARY

The projects include tearing down a cottage at Terra Cotta, building gabions at Eldorado Park, restoring Erindale landside, cleaning out Cawthra and Cookville creeks, building a pony trail and a natural gym at Meadowvale, haying at Hillsburg Conservation Farm, and various other projects, none the least of which was roadside clean-up!

Some of these projects may not sound too meaningful or enhancing for the environment, but everything did have a purpose. The wood from an otherwise decaying cottage was re-used to build the playground which itself provides an added attraction for the kids at Terra Cotta. The nature trails provide recreation - an increasingly important aspect in today's complicated society. The conservation areas themselves feature such simple pleasures as walking, swimming, and relaxing. The predominant noise that of people laughing and there is the feel of grass instead of pavement beneath one's feet.

Pleasure and enjoyment are as essential as the repairing of a landside or the cleaning up of a roadside. SWEEP projects do these essentials as well as enhancing such pleasures as enjoying nature.

Stove Fire Causes Damage To Home

A fire originating in a stove at 10 Arletta Street caused an estimated $1,300 damage, August 15. Firemen answered the call at 8 p.m. and quickly extinguished the fire.

Earlier that same day firemen were called to a rubbish fire at the corner of Mountainview and Sargent Road.

The Chief Ken Bukema told The Herald it is becoming increasingly difficult to find help for the dispatching service and warns it could become a serious problem.

The chief is attending the Canadian Association of Fire Chief's Conference in Kingston, from August 20 to 25.

Sheridan Enrolment Will Be Up

It is expected that there will be more than 2,800 daytime students at Sheridan College in Brampton this year - up 600 from 1971-72. The original enrolment projection was 2,550.

In a registrar's report, John Bromley stated that the college has received 2,100 first year student confirmations already, in addition to at least 700 returning students in the fall. This compares with 1,450 confirmations this time last year. The increase in enrolment, said president John Porter, represents the largest increase in student numbers in any year in the history of the college.

"We attribute this accelerating growth rate to the high quality of programs developed to meet students' needs and to the effective relationship between college and community," says Mr. Bromley.

The college started operation on one campus in Brampton in 1967 with 400 students enrolled in almost 20 programs. Sheridan is now located on seven campuses throughout Halton and Peel counties offering over 70 full time programs.

This increased growth rate of 2,800 brings student enrolment to the level originally predicted for 1973-74.

reforestation areas are projects that illustrate the harm change can bring to our environment. New farming methods have stripped the land of its natural protection as farmers strain to pull the highest possible yield from the earth. Trees that are so quickly torn down take a lifetime to grow. Through these two SWEEP projects nature, taught us that change should be gradual or its good will be lost.

Many students have never experienced haying or the task of pruning trees, and such lessons as these are invaluable. We are to save our countryside. Through SWEEP projects, students learned that the most economical way isn't always the best way, and in the end man usually pays for his shortcut methods as he is forced to pay more for his produce and has to rebuild and make-up for his mistakes.

Roadside clean-up was perhaps the greatest eye-opener of all the projects. It is considered the most mundane of all jobs, yet it illustrates how little people in Ontario care for their "home away from home". It is a thankless task as one realizes that the road will probably be in the same condition in which we found it within a couple of weeks. Ironically this is one of the easiest forms of pollution to correct, yet few people seem to make the effort to do anything about it. Paraphrasing a Bruce Trail slogan, "if one can carry a stick with them, one can carry it back to the nearest litter container".

HELP NEEDED

Many of these points we learned on the job, while others we heard about at our Thursday afternoon educational seminars. Here we saw various films, had discussions and heard from several government officials. The government is working hard but it is made up of people who can only handle the job successfully if they receive the help of the citizens.

How, apart from providing such things as cleaner roadsides and a new playground, does SWEEP benefit the community? The 50 young people working on the projects can provide a beginning for improvement. They in turn influence friends and hopefully this influence will spread further afield. In addition, these young people will approach their chosen professions with a heightened awareness of the surroundings and perhaps undo or prevent further damage.

SWEEP also proves that work can be fun. Projects get finished and everyone has fun doing them. Supervisors are the same age as their fellow workers, and co-operation is excellent. Perhaps it is an additional lesson that work, if meaningful, can be enjoyable.

Naturally all SWEEP students aren't idealistic crusaders. However, a great deal will be achieved if their efforts can awaken the rest of the community, as well as themselves to the importance of environmental experiment.

Cycle, Car Accidents Injure Two Drivers

Mountainview and River Road was the scene of an accident August 16, shortly after noon, when a '68 Camaro and a '68 Triumph motorcycle collided causing a total of $1,400 damage.

Paul Ewing, 80 Weber Drive, was taken to hospital with cuts and bruises, and $500 damage was done to the front end of his Triumph.

Hoy Guest, Glen Williams, the driver of the Camaro, escaped injury, but his Camaro had $900 damage done to the right side door and windshield.

Doug Carlson, 54 Sargent Road, also went to hospital with cuts and bruises, following an accident at Mill and Main Streets, Thursday night, August 17, at 8:42 p.m.

His '72 Triumph motorcycle was in collision with a '65 Plymouth, driven by Doris Wilson, R.R.2, Georgetown. The Plymouth received $400 damage to the right rear door and quarter panel, while the Triumph had the whole front end damaged to the tune of $800.

Skidding into a hydro pole at Mountainview and Armstrong Avenue, caused $400 damage to the front end of a '69 Chev. Friday night, August 18.

The driver, Cyril E. Clarke, 34 Ewing Street escaped injury.

Seek Location, Plan For Year-Round Coffee House

The Log Cabin Coffee House on Mill Street, is doomed at the end of August, but efforts are being made to find another location and some financing to start another coffee house on a year round basis.

Thursday night, the coffee house committee of Initiative '72, Gary Glover, Betty Tripp, and Lois Finnie, helped by various other members of the group, held a buffet dinner, with all the delicacies made by the girls themselves. The dinner marked the closing of the coffee house on August 26.

Two factors caused the closing of the log cabin, the expiry of the government grant, and the sale of the log cabin, which will be moved to another location.

The coffee house began when the Initiative '72 programme was given an Opportunities for Youth grant from the Federal government. The beginning of July saw the opening of the coffee house, which in addition to coffee and snacks offered crafts, psychology, workshop, special speakers, films, film workshop, and folk entertainment.

The coffee house hope to raise funds, through various drives, and perhaps the help of a service club to build another coffee house themselves. The committee points out they cannot carry on the current youth programme without community support, both financial and moral.

Clark-Majury Wedding In Glen Williams Church

Now living at 87E Mountainview Road North, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leonard Clark were married in a June 10 ceremony in St. John's United Church, Glen Williams. Rev. Robert Scriven officiated at the double ring ceremony, in which the bride's father gave her in marriage.

The church was decorated with yellow and white daisies, and Alf Goodwin was organist.

The bride, who was Bonnie Gail Majury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Majury, 90 Mountainview Road North, wore a silk organza gown, with high, ruffled lace neck, with lace from shoulders to floor, ending with mauve bows around the hemline. Her flowers were yellow roses and white daisies, with some heather from Scotland, and she wore a rhinestone pendant belonging to her grandmother Gibbs.

Lorna Nicholson was maid of honour, wearing a mauve flowered dimity gown and carrying a basket of mauve and white daisies. Joanne Clark, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid in yellow flashed dimity as were flower girls, Wendy Majury and Beth Gibbs, the bride's sister and cousin. They carried baskets of yellow and white daisies.

James Clark was his brother's groomsman, Kenneth Majury and Albert Clark, brothers of the bride and groom, were ushers and another brother, Bill Clark, was ring bearer.

At a reception in the church hall, the bride's mother wore a yellow crepe coat and dress ensemble, with yellow and orange rose corsage. The groom's mother was in pink crimplene with corsage of white and pink roses.

Guests included the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibbs and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Majury. Mrs. Gibbs was in a blue crepe dress and Mrs. Majury in pink crimplene, both with white rose corsages. The groom's aunt from Virginia, who said grace at the reception, wore a white suit-dress, with pink corsage.

For a honeymoon trip to Virginia, the bride wore a white and red hot pants outfit, and a

Casting Starts for GLT Fall Production

Final readings for roles in Georgetown Little Theatre's first fall play are slated for September 6.

Spring and Port Wine, by Paul Naughton, has been chosen and Pat Smith will direct.

It is his first local directing assignment, but he has directed several GLT members when they were in the Bramalea group.

It was through their recommendation that Mr. Smith was asked to direct a play in Georgetown, and on examining his past record, it should be a rewarding experience for cast and audience.

He attended the London School of Music and Drama for three years in the English professional theatre. As a member of the Red Circle group, he directed one act plays for over two years, then graduated to full length productions.

Although during his time with Bramalea, he has taken leads in six plays, he confesses his first love is directing, and he has handled eight of these there. He requires a high standard in all aspects of a production and theatre goers can look forward to a superior show in Spring and Port Wine.

Attendance at last week's readings at the home of John and Ann Horning was somewhat disappointing, due to holidays, but its main purpose was to familiarize the Little Theatre group with the play and to meet the new director. It is expected all members will be present at the September meeting.
