

Fair Aims at New Residents

BY SHARON GIBBS
 Representatives of 14 of Georgetown's active organizations took their message to the "Y" sponsored "Ladies-take-a-Break" group at St. John's United Church, last week.
 How did this come about? Wanting to get Georgetowners, especially new Georgetowners, involved in Georgetown, the "Y" sponsored a fair, where local groups were invited to set up displays and talk to members of the "Ladies-take-a-Break" group.
 Approximately 125 women took advantage of the opportunity to discover the groups, and learn how many different things are available to those who feel confined by four kitchen walls, or those who have spare time, and want to channel their energy in a positive direction.

going from booth to booth as well, learning about other clubs.

Everyone was excited with the project, and "Ladies-take-a-Break" members were especially appreciative of the efforts put forth by the exhibitors.

No Shepherd Dog Show Here in '73

Seventy to 80 German Shepherds will make a showing at Victoria Park Arena, Bramalea, May 20. Last year the German Shepherd Dog Club of Ontario held this show in Cedarvale park in Georgetown.
 Mrs. Jack Nolan, wife of the club's president says, there are a number of dogs owned by Georgetown residents scheduled to appear in this year's show. Ten trophies will be offered, five for males and five for female dogs.
 The club will also put on another show in Kitchener during Octoberfest.

WIDE SPECTRUM
 The groups reflected a wide spectrum of interests - creative ones such as the Pen and Palette Club and the Rug Hooking Guild, socially oriented ones such as the YWYMCA itself, the Association for the Mentally Retarded, the Hospital Auxiliary and Candy-strippers, the Cancer Society, the Red Cross, the Children's Aid Society, Business and Professional Women's Club, and the I.O.O.F., environmental ones, such as the Naturalists. Club members weren't the only ones going from booth to booth - the exhibitors were Roll call was answered with 'A country, and a farm produce for which it is famous'. Final plans were made for the annual euche party.

 Some knitted articles were brought in for a sale which will be sent to Korea. A visit to Halton Centennial Manor in April was discussed.
 Mrs. George Ironside, convener of agriculture, introduced the speaker, Miss Robson, who told of a trip she took last year to Baffin Island. She kept a day-to-day diary which told of the country and the daily events of her journey. A social half hour was spent over lunch after the meeting.

Reminiscing with the Colonel

The Hillbillies

When I think of this little story I always have a little chuckle to myself. Time was, back in the twenties when the automobile was the coming thing. So I set up in a service station in a place called Nicholasville, Kentucky. For a while there I was doing a fair bit of business, but then I ran into a spot of trouble. My service station was down in a valley, and it seems I wasn't very popular with some of my new neighbours. There was this bunch of no-good hillbillies up on the hill who'd sit up there cussin' and shoutin' and taking a pot shot at two at cars as they pulled into my service station. Well folks don't like to be shot at, no how, so my business began to drop off. I got so darned mad that I decided to give that bunch of hillbillies a dose of their own medicine. So I borrowed me a shotgun and the next time they started their ticks, I gave 'em a blast of buckshot over their heads. I reckon that was the biggest surprise they ever had and they took off like rabbits. I never saw hide nor hair of them from that day on, and my customers came and went peaceful as you please.

Nothing stops Colonel Sanders once he gets started. He just doesn't give up on an idea and when it's an idea as delicious as Kentucky Fried Chicken who can blame him. Colonel Sanders was determined to perfect his secret recipe and his special cooking methods to make the best Fried Chicken you can buy. His boys are carryin' on the good work just like he taught them to. So you can be sure that when you pick up Kentucky Fried Chicken from any of the Colonel's boys anywhere in Canada it'll be finger tickin' good.
