

Reception Officially Opens New Royal Bank Building

The new Royal Bank building on Main Street across the corner from its former location officially opened its doors Saturday morning with a reception for the public. Against the colourful background murals on the walls and baskets of flowers on the counter tops, Mayor Bill

Smith, manager Doug Hauser and assistant supervisor of corporate developments, Frank Stevens cut the ribbon to mark the occasion. Ilye Gladman, owner and builder of the bank, then presented the manager with a large key.

Manager Doug Hauser introduced his staff of 17 and said the bank had first come to Georgetown in 1947.

The staff served refreshments to the visitors, and conducted them on a tour of the bank.

Elizabeth Fry Society Names New Directors

The Elizabeth Fry Society Peel-Halton Branch held their annual general meeting, March 28, to elect their board of directors. The incorporated board of directors is as follows: Mrs. Nan Creaghan, Miss Debbie Reynolds, Mrs. Valerie Park, Mrs. Doris Reynolds, Mrs. Marjorie Amos, Mrs. Kay Swackhamer.

Mrs. Patricia Whiteford, Mrs. Betty Brownridge, Mr. Robert V. Callahan, Mrs. Pat Laine, Mrs. Ruth Cowper-Smith, Mrs. Brenda Henderson. Mrs. Brenda Henderson presented the president Mrs. Marjorie Amos with a gavel on behalf of the Board of Directors. The annual report was also presented to the members.

Mrs. Amos thanked and extended her appreciation to the outgoing Board of Directors for all their support and also to the staff at Vanier for all their co-operation to the volunteers in the past year.

Miss Phyllis Haslam, Executive Director of the Toronto Branch conducted the elections and then led off in a 20 question and answer type of program.

Miss Haslam invited the audience to ask 20 questions about Elizabeth Fry and its work. The questions ranged from queries about the provincial council to capital punishment to advice for new volunteers.

Miss Haslam advised her listeners to basically believe in the philosophy of the agency that "is in the worth of people", "to become informed" not to be negatively critical, but to come out and strongly support progressive measures.

people have hinges greatly on the stars they were born under. Decorating she said is for adorning. One's home is one's castle and the castle is for pleasure.

"Home should be a functional place first, then practical and finally beautiful, it should be a place where one's husband can relax and the children feel happy", Mrs. Milne said. On behalf of the chapter Dianne Alls thanked Mrs. Milne and presented her with a gift as a token of appreciation. The members hope in the future to invite her back to demonstrate her forte which is Danish pastry.

advisable to amalgamate with another firm. Despite these changes we still had a finger on the local pulse through our paper. But change is inevitable and it was with regret that we learned that the publisher was leaving his post, which he purchased The Herald from the J. M. Moore Estate.

HOUSEWIFE UNDER-

The programme title allowed great diversification and so Mrs. Milne covered briefly some of the important factors of being a hostess. She claimed that women were here to enrich their lives either as mothers, teachers, cooks, dressmakers, chauffeurs and housewives or homemakers. With the advent of Women's Liberation the housewife has become very under-rated. Members were told that housewives held the key to the future. "As mothers, teachers, etc. we are training and moulding the future citizens of this great land of ours 'Canada', as hostesses we have to appeal to the family, and to friends most important thing to remember is be ones self", she said.

Programme conveners: Agriculture & Canadian Industries Mrs. Fred Armstrong, Mrs. Robert Harris, Mrs. William Humphreys; citizenship & world affairs Mrs. C. A. Grant, Mrs. W. R. Lawson; education and cultural activities Mrs. M. Boettcher, Mrs. Tony Marshall, Mrs. A. McLachlan.

Family & Consumer Affairs Mrs. George Atkinson, Mrs. J. Godden, resolutions Mrs. R. McDonald; flowers and fruit Mrs. R. Lubbers; telephone convener Mrs. John Dawson.

Tucked away in the second section of The Herald is a little notice that reads— "Georgetown Herald, established 1865". Over a century of service as publishers and printers has been offered by The Herald to Georgetown and District — and we suppose for the best part of over a hundred years, we in this community and district have taken the Herald and its publisher for granted.

It has been a part of our way of life, we read The Herald whether we read anything else during the week or not. We read the news, the happenings on our own doorstep first and perhaps would note that here and there a small store was being absorbed in the chain of stores, or someone else had found it
