Georgetown Herald

A Division of Canadian Newspapers Company Limited 22 Main Street South, Georgetown, Ontario JIM W. MARTYN, Publisher

Page 2 GEORGETOWN HERALD, THURSDAY, APR. 26, 1973

Sugar Coating Won't Hide Unemployment Problem

Apparently Manpower Minister Robert Andras has come to realize that the unemployed in Canada are not simply statistics to be tossed about by politicians, but are individuals with feelings just like everyone else.

And to show that he realizes this he is going to open up 18 new Unemployment Insurance Offices and expand 90 others at a cost of $90 million.

Although the cost may seem rather high for this expanded service, the important aspect is the government has recognized that unemployed are people when only a few months ago it appeared to be willing to live with a rather high statistical rate of unemployment.

Mr. Andras hopes that his expansion scheme will result in claimants feeling they are dealing with an agency which is concerned with their situation rather than with a cold bureaucracy.

Actually we would suggest that most individuals who have to deal with a government department or agency often get the feeling that they are dealing with a cold bureaucracy. It is something that all cabinet ministers should consider and possibly make the staffs of their departments realize that all of us are people and not just statistics to be dealt with on

But possibly Mr. Andras also has a political motive in his desire to have the unemployed feel he is concerned with them as individuals.

Although the jobless total declined last month, there are still about 608,000 Canadians on the unemployment roll. And that is a lot of voters who could be very important to Mr. Andras and his colleagues in Ottawa.

So it is best to keep the unemployed in as good a mood as possible.

The minister also hopes that the expansion of UIC offices will reduce the number of abuses of the insurance program and this makes a lot of sense as undoubtedly many voters felt last fall, rightly or wrongly, that the government was not tough enough on those who cheated on the UIC.

But does any of this solve the real problem? The fact still remains that more than 600,000 Canadians are seeking work. Many of these represent heads of families who undoubtedly have dreams and hopes for the future but will be unable to do much about their dreams until they are gainfully

To show real concern, Mr. Andras and his colleagues must work to creating much more employment in Canada than exists loday.

By increasing the number of jobs and reducing the unemployment rolls, not only will the jobless benefit but they won't have to worry about dealing with any type of bureaucracy and it will not be necessary for the government to spend several million dollars of taxpayers money to sugar-coat a bitter pill.

And that is what unemployment is - a bitter pill - for everyone.

Protecting the Public

There has been a considerable amount of controversy the past few months regarding penitentiaries and jails and whether or not too many prisoners are being released on parole.

This is possibly the reason for Solicitor General Warren Allmand stating last week that there is serious overcrowding in Canada's penitentiaries.

He said that the rise in prison population is mainly attributable to a "tough new" attitude in the courts and the National Parole Board.

One thing he said, that should cause public concern, is that the decline in the number of paroles being granted is causing a feeling of hopelessness among inmates.

If the solicitor general is correct, then a situation similar to the Kingston riot could be developing in Canadian penitentiaries and result in a long, hot summer for prison authorities.

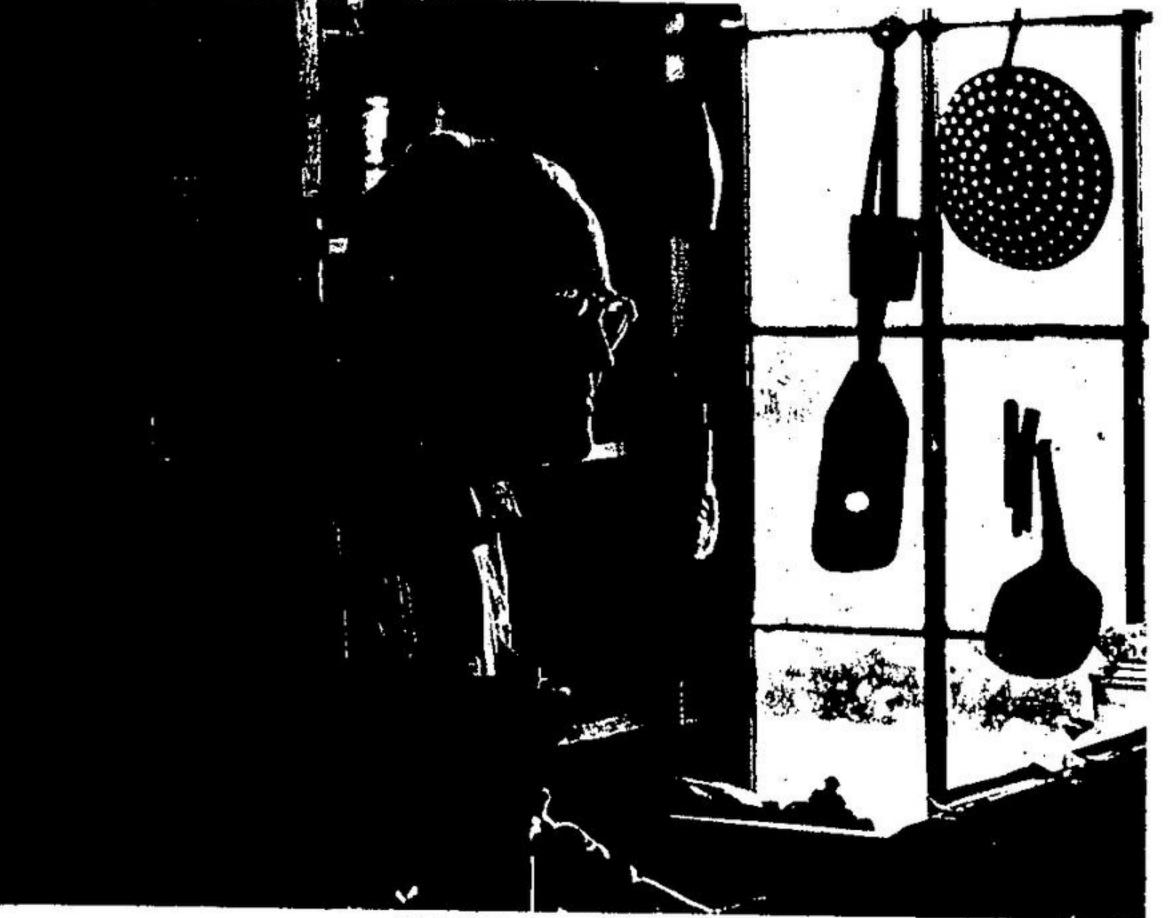

It is a simple fact that we will always need some type of prisons or institutions for the protection of society. Whether Canada has to maintain its position of locking up more people per capita than most other nations is debatable.

A man or woman who commits a crime can be locked behind bars for three or four years and the public is protected. But unless that individual is able to lead a different type of life when he or she is released the public will no longer be protected.

Parole is able to do much more in assisting a released inmate lead a normal life than simply releasing him and expecting him to make it having now "learned his lesson",

Much of the public outcry towards parole has been due to inmates on temporary passes committing crimes. And these passes have nothing to do with parole. Mr. Allmand should take a new look at the temporary pass system to make certain that dangerous offenders are not allowed free to prey on innocent

Rehabilitation is most important, but the public must be protected from those who have no

WORTH SECOND PRIZE

Stephen Brookes' study of an elderly man in the general store at Pioneer Village was

Reclamation

This is to comment on the letter about glass and tin reclamation in the Herald of April 12. The suggestion by the writer of that letter seems like a good one. If enough homemakers return bottles and tins, perhaps the

I believe the responsibility for handling materials

(glass, metal and plastic) for recycling should be the supermarkets. That's where most of the garbage comes from. They should set up the bins to collect the material.

often is overlooked in the matter of reclamation is that many containers should be recycled intact. We now return plastic milk bottles and glass beer and pop bottles, why not re-use plastic vinegar bottles, Jam

The energy required to clean and refill these containers is much less than the energy needed to make new containers from reclaimed glass or metal, etc. A return to true refillable containers

The following letter from the Oakville and District

Labor Council, was sent to

Reeve Allan Masson, Oakville, and Deputy Reeve

We, the members of the

Oakville District Labor

Council, appreciate your

Marjorie Powys, Milton.

-Mrs. R. Hansen

Norval, Ont.

should be our aim.

One Tier

jars, etc.

Editor

The Herald.

Another point which so practice will become "in" and others will follow.

The Herald.

worth second prize in a recent photography contest using Pioneer Village sub-

FORUM FOR READERS

support for the one tier system of regional government. We are especially pleased that it is also supported by other areas who have some experience with

This Labor Council and the Ontario Federation of Labor have consistently supported the one tier system since its inception and we appreciate any public officials who

Image of Trucks

Several months ago the Minister of Transportation and Communications, the Hon. Gordon Carton, commented in the press on the lack of courtesy on the part of commercial vehicles and their apparent disregard for the convenience of other

He particularly pointed to commercial vehicles driving two and three abreast on hills and bridge approaches there by preventing the passage of

At that time, the Minister suggested that unless the transportation industry, as a whole, policed itself and an improvement in the driving be compelled to institute

Such legislation has now been enacted. Effective immediately, trucks are not permitted to use the left-hand lane whenever a freeway has three or more lanes in one direction. On high volume freeways with only two lanes in one legislation to correct the situation.

habits was noted, he would users of the highways.

faster moving traffic.

Jack Henry,

Municipal Committee

regional government.

share our view.

Editor, The Herald,

Chairman.

jects. He is a photography student at Humber College direction, signs advising

"Slower Traffic Keep Right"

While supporting the new legislation, observations of Ontario Safety League staff members indicate that the use of the left-hand lane by are now being erected.

IMPEDIMENT

former Herald photographer Peter Jones.

By Jim Martyn About a week and a half ago I completed a 2,100 mile trip and arrived in Georgetown. Although I have not had a great deal of time in which to become very familiar with the community

Strictly Personal

I would like to pass on my first impressions. I'm not exactly certain what I was expecting but I was pleasantly surprised when I reached the outskirts after the short drive from Brampton. My first reaction was one of surprise due to the apparent growth and size of Georgetown one notes im-

My hometown of Prince Albert, Sask, has a population of about 30,000 and although I had been told Georgetown had a population of about 15,000 I was expecting a much smaller community.

mediately.

I also noted that the community was composed of long established and newer sections which is quite similar to Prince Albert and helped to give me a feeling of FRIENDLINESS Another thing that I have noted since my arrival is the friendliness of the people.

More and more, in regions of marginal farming and small, mixed farming, we see that the farmer must have a job in town if he is to enjoy more than a frugal

More and more we see that it is only the big farmer or the specialist who can meet the bills and make a decent

More and more we see that farming has become an industry in which the in-machinery, supplies and labour is inordinate in comparison to the returns.

charged himself wages for his own work, he'd show a net loss. He'd be better to put his money into a hot-dog stand.

farmer. He has no sock of gold under the bed. He must borrow money to buy stock, machinery, feed, fertilizer.

He must pay interest on this money to our established banks, which are no less greedy than they were in the depression. They merely have a better "image" because they have a big public relations programme.

While his beef is becoming beef, this farmer has nothing coming in, except interest charges on his loan. When his beef is ready, does he set the price? He does not. He sells it at auction. Who drives up the price? The beef-hungry

Marie Antoinette, of ill-fated fame, said of the peasants who protested that they had no bread, "Let them eat cake." I'd reverse that a bit and say of people who say they can't afford beef, "Let them eat barley." It's very Perhaps I'm prejudiced. I grew up during the depression. If we had beef once a week, it was probably hamburg. As a kid, I was sometimes sent to the store for some "dog bones." These were beef bones with some meat on them, and they were free. The butcher knew darn well what they were for - a good pot of soup - but he consumer that's who.

nutritious.

winked at it.

FARM LOAN

Let's take an average beef

If an average farmer in living.

vestment

When a westerner refers to

BILL SMILEY Farmer Should Be One to Beef

It's a long time since I read as much misdirected garbage as I have in the past weeks, concerning meat prices. Directed garbage is when you hit the target. Most of this hit the wrong target the farmer.

For some mysterious reason, a lot of people look on the farmer as a flinty. money-grubbing character who takes a particular sadistic pleasure in gouging the poor working man, not to mention the downtrodden executive, professional man, or school teacher. It's just the opposite. For years, generations in this country, the farmer has been gouged by the rest of us, and here's one consumer who not only believes, but knows. that the average farmer has had a tinier share of our twentieth century affluence than any other segment of our community, including those on welfare, proportionately. There are a few exceptions. There are a few wealthy farmers. Just as there are a few wealthy school teachers. In the case of the farmer, it is the man whose forefathers were lucky enough to clear a farm near a big city-to-be. His land has become valuable for building and he can sit on it farmer ony more. LONG HOURS The real farmer is the fellow who works hours-perweek that would have an industrial worker screaming for the union, owns one suit owes money at the bank, and has a net income of about and watch the value appreciate. But he's not a real $4,000 a year. He's got to be a gambler, a fatalist, and a man in whom hope springs eternal. He gambles on the weather and the market, must accept disaster with a shrug, and must begin each new season with optimism.

Lasting Resentment Seen from Budget

Queen's Park Bureau Of The Herald. TORONTO-A few last words about this year's budget: Treasurer John White did a

The modified tax credit field).

The tax will show an lot of juggling to try and give low income earners a break. or at least to appear to give them a break.

plan and the payment for sales tax amounting to $30 million are aimed in this Still, however, there are $333 million in new taxes this year, and no matter how these are juggled some of them are going to bit the low government revenue.

ENERGY TAX

Analysts are still trying to figure out just why Mr. White ent to this field. For the tax will show on every electricity bill, gas bill, coal or oil bill and will breed resentment. One possible explanation is that with energy getting in short supply it might tend to lower consumption.

hudget on the part of the treasurer.

estimated return of $65 million, a big sum but not all that blg in relation to total

Many a time our "dinner" was pea soup and homemade hread, with some preserves wild berries picked by ourselves - for dessert. Nobody suffered malnutrition in that family. Sometimes our "meat" was the ground-up skins of haked potatoes, mixed in with onions and fried potatoes. They gave it the appearance and roughage of. meat, if not the flavour, Jolly good stuff. In prison camp, meat was merely something you thought about, like going to heaven. But a howl of sweetened barley! Now, that was heaven. IRKED

I'm afraid it rather irks me to listen to a working man who will buy a case of beer and a bottle of liquor on Friday night for $11 whining in the supermarket on Saturday afternoon about the exorbitant price of meat.

And even more disgusting is the executive type. He's just finished regaling you with the details of his $1,000 holiday in the south, snorkelling, rum punch cocktail parties, the works, when his wife starts howling like a hyena because their food bill is up three bucks a

There are some holes in the | chain of food prices. But don't blame the farmer. He's the last to benefit when prices go up, the first to suffer when they go down. Show me a rich farmer and I'll show you a rich weekly editor, or a rich school teacher.

the East, he immediately conjures up all sorts of ideas and visions and one of these is that "no one will have the time to talk to you," I haven't found that at all. Although I have had very little time to really get acquainted with many people, I have had some most interesting conversations with several citizens in different walks of

I suppose it goes to show that people are people, wherever they are.

Although I come from a prairie province, the area in which I lived is similar to northern Ontario with lakes. rivers and forests and I wasn't certain as to what type of geographical area I was coming to. And that also was a pleasant surprise. One thing that I found interesting was my first meeting of town council that I attended with former Herald publisher Walter Blehn.

Whether I just happened to hit a good night or not only time will tell, but I was impressed with the calibre of members of council and the fact that they could express views which differed without anyone becoming angry. It is about three or four years since I covered council meetings on a regular basis, but I will never forget the squabbling and ridiculous and time-consuming infighting which was always part of the game in Prince

I hope to be taking an active part in the coverage that The Herald provides of the Georgetown council, and I will admit that I'll require a great deal of co-operationand patience on the part of council members and municipal officials.

Although some of our readers may feel a little concerned that a "stranger" is taking the place of Mr. Biehn who has been a part of this community for 33 years, I ask only for your patience before you pass judgement.

VITAL PART I feel that The Herald is a vital part of Georgetown and it must always concern itself with that which is in the best interests of the community without ignoring the causes differ with the view of the majority. While I have some rather strong views on some subjects I feel that I am openminded enough to be willing to listen and appreciate the view of the other side whether I agree or not. And I will certainly welcome any suggestions that any of our readers wish to make. I ask that you feel free to give me a call or drop a note in the mail regarding any aspect of Georgetown or

Although my heart is still out in the west some place, I feel that on the basis of the past week's experience it is gradually moving eastward and I expect it won't be long before I feel I am an integral

You have a great community here and I'm proud to join with you in whatever hopes you have for its future.

In View

TORONTO-All the Onlario government's plans for regional government have been laid right out on the table for all to see, the Honourable John White, Minister of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs.

He told the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario that he hoped to correct "the erroneous notions that some people have about our policies, our timing and our intentions" regarding regional government. The minister said some people seem convinced that 'somewhere, in some dark corner of Queen's Park. there exists a plan with notations saying, 'Regional government here, here, here, and here.'

NO PLAN "There is no such plan," Mr. White declared.

GEORGETOWN HERALD Established 1865 Telephone 877-2201 JIM W. MARTYN Publisher

GARFIELD McGILVRAY Production Manager TERRY HARLEY

News Editor FRANK MULLIN Advertising Manager AILEEN BRADLEY

Anne Currie, William Arnott, Caruso. Valerie Hastings, Myles Gilson, John McClements, Joan Davis, Joyce VanDelinder

Mr. and Mrs. N. Eyre Telephone 877-4067

ECHOES

TEN YEARS AGO

Originally planned to be paid over thirty years, the sewage pumping station for Georgetown's new industrial area will be debentured over the next five years, council learned on Monday, April 15, 1963. $14,304 in 51k percent debentures will be issued through Central Mortgage and Housing to pay for the pump station. "We'll save $12,000 over the shorter term" Mayor Hyde said. Reeve Elliott said that if the town had been able to issue debentures in this way when the disposal plant was built, considerable more money could have been saved. "More than $200,000" said the mayor rucfully.

With three councillors dissenting, council on Monday decided to use only one local newspaper in publishing extracts from the 1962 auditors report in the week coming. A new regulation at Queen's Park made It obligatory for municipalities to publish portions of the report, including the auditor's remarks and the profit and loss comparison with the budget in a newspaper of general circulation.

Georgetown and District YMCA-YWCA had a membership of nearly 200, all of whom were Charter members of the organization in 1963. They ranged from mere infants who were members by virtue of the fact that Mom and Dad have taken out a family membership, to oldsters who, while not expecting to participate in any of the "Y" programs were nevertheless anxious to lend support to the association.

The rare creature, natt tish, half salamander, turned up in the Credit River, Friday April 19, 1963, when a gang of Norval boys hooked it while fishing for chub near the Riviera. The fish-salamander is more commonly known as a Mud Pupple and according to a zoology book at the public library has been found mainly in the eastern states.

Officials of Esquesing Agricultural Society are concerned about vandalism at the park.

During this time a large sheet of metal was torn from the building which was erected to house livestock on fair day and as a storage shed during that year, and entry has been made to the building. The damage adds to the cost of the building which is still not completely paid for, and is a discouragement to society officials who have done a lot of good work in creating a building which is helpful to the fair and an asset to Georgetown's Park. The police have been alerted to keep an eye on the building and parents are warned that further vandalism will lead to charges being laid against the juveniles responsible for the

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was announced that Dick Licata would head a committee to plan for Georgetown's Coronation celebration on Tuesday, June 2, 1953. Tentative plans were made at a meeting in the council chambers on Thursday to which Mayor Armstrong had invited representatives of all men's and ladies' organizations in town. The meeting appointed a committee to serve with Mr. Lieata, which includes: Mrs. Alex Taylor and Harold Henry, vice presidents: Garfield McGilvray, treasurer:

No residence can be built in the township which does not have a value of at least $5,000. Esquesing council amended a 1948 by-law to set this new figure in line with changing conditions. The building inspector cannot issue a permit for a house costing less than National War Finance Committee. "This year, hundreds of thousands of Canadians will risk their ALL for victory. This is "attack" year. Trained and ready for the sacrifice, our fighting men will pull no punches. How about You? These men going into battle DEMAND nothing of you. But they know how much depends upon those dollars you earned in jobs that have no risks like theirs. Are you yoing to pull your punches -NOW? Maybe you've bought Victory Bonds till it hurts - in preparation for the attack. You did a good job there. But attack is still more costly than preparation. More Canadians buying more Victory Bonds that is the price asked of those at home for the drive to victory in this year of attack. When so many LIVES are being dedicated to victory, are you preparing to dedicate your intention of being rehabilitated.

and Mrs. Trevor Williams, secretary,

THIRTY YEARS AGO

An ad appeared April 21, 1943 from the DOLLARS to the same end?

O'CONNOR'S OTTAWA

majestic structures representing the finest examples of Gothic architecture in North America. Elaborate stone carvings adorn all doorways and most windows as well as the arched hallways buildings. The famous Peace Tower provides the focal point of "The Hill" and can be seen and heard for many miles around. The 30 acre site of the centre, east and west blocks, as they are called, is located high SPACE PROBLEM on a rock promontory overlooking the Ottawa river. to be the capital in December of marble walls and staircases, 1857 and construction of the secret passageways and first parliament buildings breathtaking views. commenced in December of away. Originally designed to until 10 years ago two Members cost a million dollars, the costs shared an office, some of which work stopped while a Royal broomclosets - the offices that Commission investigated the is. situation. Sound familiar?

AHEAD OF TIME

With the work stoppage all the skilled men went home and construction was delayed for 18 months. However finally DROP IN completed in 1866 the original building cost four million fine seat of government a Liberal Leader George When you are in Ottawa drop in

Brown protested that the buildings were 500 years ahead of their time. He said it was going to cost half of the revenue of Canada to heat, light and keep them clean. comment. Imagine playing Boad East, Oakville : 844-0222.

The Canadian Parliament politics with our very buildings are venerable and parliament buildings. Tsk, Tsk, Mr. Brown.

On February 3, 1916, the entire centre block except for the library was destroyed by fire. Construction of the larger and more gracious present building commenced imand chambers in all three mediately after the fire and was completed in 1920. The centre block houses the Commons and Senate chambers as well as over a hundred Senators and Members offices and their staffs. The buildings abound in turrets, five and six-sided Queen Victoria chose Ottawa rooms, archways, gargoyles, However space, or the lack of 1859. Skilled stonemasons from it, has always been a problem. Britain, Germany and the U.S. Originally M.P.'s did not have were hired to work with the offices, the position being special stone quarried in the part time and then for only a Napian Township 12 miles few months of every year. Up soon soared out of sight and were hardly larger than

> But things are looking up. For the first time the offices of some M.P.s are located off the Hill - in the Confederation Building about 200 yds, west of the West Block.

To truly appreciate Canada's personal visit is necessary.

to my office and I will be happy to give you a Cook's tour. If you have a problem, idea, comment, critism or if you simply wish to get in touch with me please stop by or call my Well, now, that's some Riding office at 326 Lakeshore feels that the transportation industry could take a real step in removing some of the tarnish from its image by voluntarily instructing its members to use the righthand lane exclusively, except when passing. The ability, safety and courtesy of the commercial driver was once well noted. Here is an opportunity for the industry to regain some of the prestige it has lost with the public.

-Fred H-Ellis General Manager Ontario Safety League. Bible

Today "Give, and it shall be given unto you: good measure. pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again". Luke Have you given anything besides money to the Lord's work lately or ever? Contrary to what you think, "you are not your own" "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak". Matthew 26:41 Following this formula may not keep the temptation from coming, but it will keep us from being overcome by them, "There hath no temptation

Queen's Park

BY DON OTHERN

The energy tax will probably be the most unpopular of the new taxes. even more so probably than the increase in sales tax (though this does hit a wider

PERSONAL BUDGET This was a very personal

Where this really showed was in the new sales tax exemption for flowers, seeds and household pets. What other treasurer possibly would have thought of such an exemption?

garden.

Which was to be expected, for White is a very personal that important. The saving to taxpayers is estimated at $4 million. But White reported he had two beagles, a "pussy-cot" and a gold-fish. He also has a Money-wise it really isn't items would be pleasing to the millions of pet and flower fanciers. Anything pleasing, of course, makes good politics.

And the treasurer is a very

And he would believe that elimination of tax on these political man EVER FORGOTTEN? Finally, in 30 years I have not seen a budget which has been resented so much. The governmen presumably was following the old political formula of putting on its tax increases in its second year in office. But this time there seems a real question whether the boosts will be forgotten by election time.

IMPRESSED

Albert.

and organizations who may

The Herald you wish to raise.

part of Georgetown.

All Plans

said recently.

Accountant

CARRIERCIRCULATION