ARMENIAN BOYS, NOW AND THEN

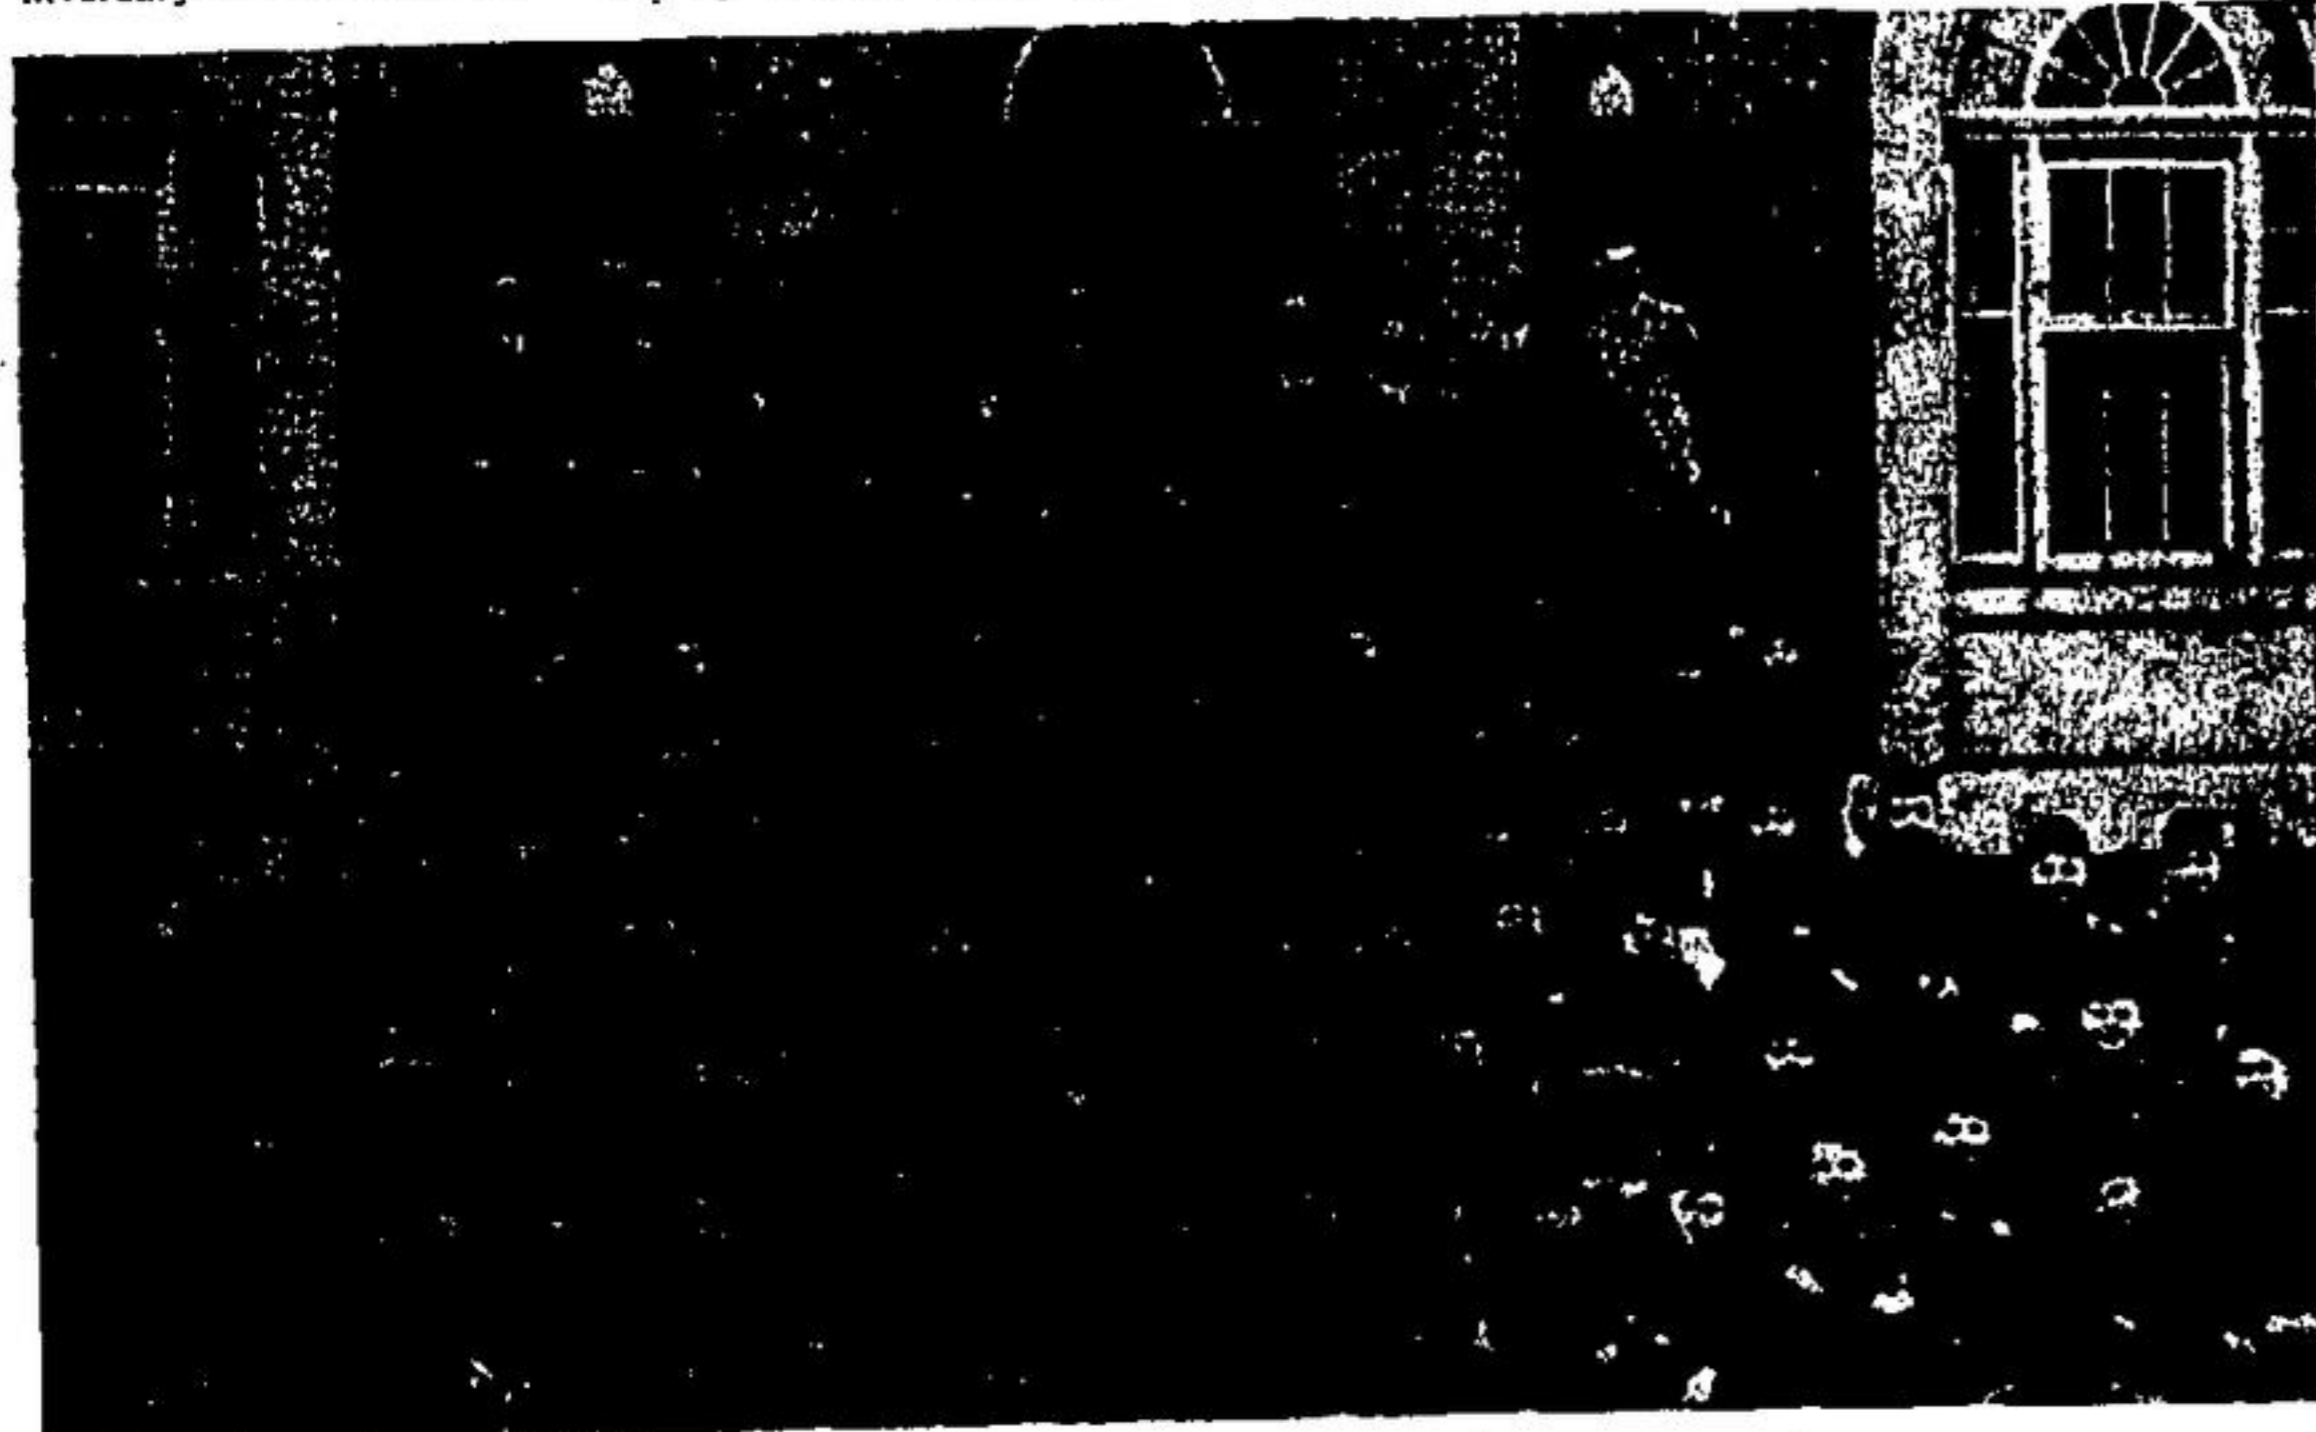

ALMOST 50 YEARS later some of the Armenian "boys" pose for another picture, above at a picnic celebrating the 50th anniversary of their arrival in Georgetown, their first Canadian home, their refuge from the Greco-Turkish war of 1922-23. The reunion was held at Cedarvale community centre, where the boys lived until 1929. At that time it was known as the Armenian Boys Farm. The property was then converted to the Cedarvale School for Girls, run by the United Church of Canada. Five members of the Armenian Boys Association are sitting in the same order as they were in the picture, below, taken around 1925.
