

SWIMMERS STUDY RESCUE METHODS

IT IS NOT the scene of an averted tragedy, it is a demonstration of mouth to mouth breathing by Tom Wylie and Bruce McIntyre as they take the intermediate Red Cross swimming test.

Saturday, at Georgetown swimming pool. Artificial respiration is only one of the many tests necessary to obtain the intermediate swimming badge.

MAJOR MOSQUITO

Georgetown 2 - Burlington 8

Georgetown didn't play at all well in this one. They were totally outplayed. Goals were scored by Paul Morrow and Billie Johnson. Despite the score Jamie Clare played a fantastic game in goal.
Sorry, that is all the Halton-Feel results I could get hold of. The rest will be in next week.

JUNIOR 'B'
Gunners 2 - Dundas Dynamos 1
Georgetown scored first and was up 1-0 at half time. Early in the second half Dundas equalized. After that Georgetown did all but score. It put the ball over the bar and missed the net time after time. But with about 15 minutes remaining Paul Thompson headed home a corner kick taken by Gary Miller. Georgetown dominated the game from this point on.
Gunners 1 - London City 1
The first half of this game was scoreless as play went from end to end. In the second half London scored first on a good play. With about 10 minutes to time Ian Syme took a pass from Gary Miller and blasted it into the net to tie the score at 1-1. After this play went from end to end with both teams missing plenty of chances.

Missed Good Pictures Camera Left At Home

with GEORGE HOARE
It's often been said, if you forget your camera when going into the outdoors, you may be sorry, and feel like kicking yourself all the way home.
Many good unusual pictures I had an opportunity to take were lost forever, because, at the time of departure, my camera was thought of but left at home.
The reason? well...just considered surplus luggage.
Then again, when it was taken, more than often it was left in the locked-up car, when leaving for the river.
A small waterproof covering as protection from wet weather is all that is necessary to protect it.
While trout fishing at Terra Cotta conservation area early this year, I wondered, after several visits there, just where the two big Canada geese, usually present, had disappeared to.
About a week later, upon rounding a turn in the path, instead of just two of them there were 7 young ones with them.
Of course, my camera, both still and movie type, were back home back home I went, but when I came back I never could get as close to them as I was the first time. It was an unusual sight, so far from their northern breeding grounds. Then again in these conservation areas, they seem to sense that they have nothing to fear from humans.
MOOSE IN NEMOGAS RIVER
Another time, while pushing our earlop boat around a bend in water, we came face-to-face with a fair sized bull moose. It was an anxious moment for my companion Bill Schenk and me. Finally, the animal just trotted slowly out and was soon hidden from view in the dense brush. Yes, we had cameras, but instead of being around our neck, they were buried deep in our pack sacks.
INDIAN BOYS AT DENNEY'S DAM
Last year, on the shallow side of the Sauguen River dam, I helped two small Indian boys catch a 14 lb. chinook salmon. Two happier boys could never have been found.
My camera was back at the cottage. We gave them a ride back to their home at the Indian reservation.
BIG FISH LANDINGS
Unusual big salmon and rainbow catches, and the fight that went with them, are lost and a host of other opportunities that would make good pictures, are lost because the camera is absent.
TWO YOUNG SPORTSMEN
Well...so much for the above. If you look carefully, at the picture, of the two young outdoorsmen you probably will see why I consider just how important this one is.
There are no fish, salmon, trout, or any moose. There is a nice quiet animal with them though, and if you notice they have their mascot on a leash, they both have fishing rods and a bait can. They are also radio-equipped. A food pack is in their duffel bag, they looked happy and were quite co-operative as far as having their picture taken. They were not asked where they were going, but I'm sure of one thing, whether they had luck or not with trout, just being out there with nature would keep them happy until they went back home. Sure, I told them the picture would appear in The Georgetown Herald. But, by this time, in their mind must be considered something of a phoney.

Sports

TIME TO THINK

At the time of the picture taking, a story wasn't even thought of, but since then I've had time to think of just how important the picture of those boys was.
They took me back to the days when I did the same, and no doubt others who read this will also think back.
WILLOW STICK AND BARE FEET
There was a difference of course in our tackle. Usually I would cut a stick from a willow tree, and I was in my bare feet. My father's lunch pack was in my right hand which was to deliver it to him at the lower paper mill.
THUMB AND SUCKERS
My catch would be a nice string of colorful chub, and a few suckers.
They were delicious to eat from the cold Credit River. Sure, I can go on and on but we all know the type of picture you are looking at, does us a great favor. It takes us back into the days we treasured so much. So, thanks boys. It was my pleasure. Perhaps we will meet again some day on the river.
