Burned Hotel Grim Reminder

More than 40 members of Halton Fire Prevention Bureau saw a grim reminder of what fire prevention is all about, when they marched to St. Paul's United Church in Milton for their annual fire prevention week church parade.
 Across the road from St. Paul's lay the ruins of the Milton Inn Hotel—which was destroyed in a spectacular but stubborn $250,000 fire just two days before the parade. The firefighters passed within a few yards of the blackened hotel ruins as they marched to church.
 The parade, held in a different Halton town each October, is held to help draw attention to the nationwide observance of Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 7 to 14, and the need for more fire safety.
 Bureau chairman Jim Cruesen, a Milton firefighter, led the parade and Milton Deputy Chief George Bundy was parade marshal. Marching music was supplied by the Lorne Scots Pipe Band. Firefighters from Acton, Georgetown, Burlington and Oakville fire departments joined the Milton firefighters on parade. They marched from Milton Plaza to the church, then back to the fire hall where Milton firefighters treated the visiting firefighters and band members to sandwiches.
