

GDHS Students Hold Carnival

Students at Georgetown and District High School are holding their annual Winter Carnival next week, beginning on Feb. 2 and ending Feb. 8. They have planned activities for each day of the winter celebration, and hope old man winter will cooperate so some of their plans won't be spoiled.

This Saturday, at 8 a.m., the students are holding a pancake breakfast to start off the carnival. Organizers of this event are Gilette Rudek and Chris Timleck.

At 8 p.m. on Saturday, several of the school's beauties will once again vie for the title of Snow Queen. Susan Earle is in charge of this event.

Car enthusiasts will meet the challenge Sunday when the school plans to hold a car rally beginning at 11 a.m. Ted Darré is drawing up the plans for this activity.

Variety Night, an event open to the public, will debut on Monday at 8 p.m. Glenn Stephenson is coordinating the talent for this production.

A euchre tournament will be held after school on Tuesday and Brad Edgar is working out the details for the competition.

On Wednesday, a movie night will be held starting at 7:30 p.m. The movie to be viewed is, "Suppose They Gave a War and Nobody Came." Chris Ball is in charge of this event.

On Thursday, the students are relying on the cooperation of the weather for their snow sculpture judging, also under the auspices of Chris Ball.

Anglers, Hunters Elect Officers

The Anglers and Hunters elected their officers for the 1974 season at their club house on the 8th Line, Ballinacree. President, Gord Shoebridge, vice-president, Clifford Norton, secretary-treasurer Bob Mills. The association which has 50 acres for members use for snowmobiling, snowshoeing and a little cross country skiing at present, and in spring and summer, traps and 22 targets for target shooting.

They welcome all new members.

"Nutrition In Winter"

By KATHIE SNOBELEN

126 Burns & Associates Inc., 1260 Lakeshore Road East, Port Credit, Ontario.

KATHIE SNOBELEN

Winter always seems to bring with it the cold and flu season — and along with that, emphasis is on eating the 'right' foods to help the body resist such infections. A wise selection of foods is important all year round—not only in the winter months. A person who has a well-balanced diet all year will have the maximum resistance to such minor infections as we experience during the winter months.

Much has been heard recently about the role of Vitamin C (ascorbic acid) in helping the body to resist colds. Just how effective this theory is, is largely a matter of conjecture. Since the human body cannot store this Vitamin, we must be careful to include a source of Vitamin C in our diets each day. Any Vitamin C in excess of what the body requires is excreted. Therefore there would appear to be little advantage to taking massive amounts of Vitamin C. The amount of Vitamin C required by the body can be found in four ounces of orange juice, or by eating 1 medium orange. Incidentally, the cheapest form of Vitamin C is found naturally in orange juice.

Unsweetened fresh-frozen orange juice concentrate in 12 oz. cans provides the day's requirement of Vitamin C (30 mg.) at a cost of 1.5 cents.

Winter vegetables such as cabbage, broccoli, and turnip also contain reasonable amounts of Vitamin C and are readily available throughout the winter months.
