Preparing to paint

Interior Painting: how to start:

1. Move all furniture into the centre of the room—then cover it with plastic sheeting. Remove all picture hanging tags, nails, plus drapes and blinds.
2. Wash ceiling and wall surfaces with a mixture of warm water and mild detergent. Rinse off with clean, cold water.
3. Inspect all surfaces for cracks and holes. Don't forget the woodwork and baseboards!
4. Obtain a sturdy stepladder (BEAVER stocks several types).
5. Cover the floor area over which you're going to work with plastic sheeting (from BEAVER).
6. Using a narrow-bladed painter's knife, cut out any cracks in the ceiling; cut, so that the crack looks like a triangle upside-down—this forms a "key" to hold the filler in. Now do the same operation on any wall cracks.
7. With a wet brush, dampen the cracks and fill with Polyfilla.

Chapters Discuss Abortion

Feb. 6 was a date circled on the calendar by all chapters of Beta Sigma Phi in the Georgetown and Brampton area. The event was the annual Wine and Cheese party which was held at Cedarvale Hall. Mrs. Isabelle Graham of the Birth Right Organization was the speaker for the evening. Abortion was the topic and along with a talk and slides, Mrs. Graham stated the importance of the rights of the unborn child in today's world. Mrs. Graham also stressed that the decision of abortion between the parties involved was a very difficult one that would have lasting emotional effects.

The women of Beta Sigma Phi were given a greater insight by Mrs. Graham of the Birth Right organization, along with a factual account of what is happening at the medical, physical and emotional levels of abortion in today's society.

Wine and cheese followed the open discussion period and Mrs. Graham was presented with a gift, as a token of appreciation.

The home of Mrs. Doris De Vries was the meeting place of Zeta Phi sorority on Feb. 12. Miss Val Powell was the guest speaker for the program, "Lands and their Arts". Miss Powell gave the members a tour of countries such as Singapore, Borneo, Haiti, and Mexico. Colored slides showed the land, people's cultures, and their arts. Miss Powell also brought samples of these arts and crafts to display for our examination. On behalf of the Zeta Phi members, the program planners, Mrs. Leslie Ann Ciglen and Mrs. Ann Powell expressed our thanks to Miss Powell for a very delightful evening.

It was decided at the business meeting, that Zeta Phi would donate $15 to the endowment fund of Beta Sigma Phi. This fund aids humanity in Canada and the USA with large contributions to such organizations as polio, cancer research, and cystic fibrosis research.

The evening ended with coffee, squares and a Valentine's cake served by hostesses Norma Marshall and Eileen Quackenbush.

On the evening of Feb. 19, at the home of Vivian Petermann, Body Language was the topic for the sorority. The program consisted of an explanation of the meaning of body language or as professionals refer to it Kinesics.

Mrs. Jeanne-Marie Resney told Zeta Phi members that Kinesics is non-verbal communication between people. Jeanne-Marie gave examples of the types of Kinesics commonly used.

Mrs. Norma Tripp continued about different aspects of body language and showed some interesting pictures, three of which were of a well-known political figure and described the kinesics of his facial expressions.

Mrs. Doris De Vries followed by testing the abilities of the girls by giving a written test, as well as a quiz on nine different smiles and their meanings.

An open discussion followed and tea, coffee and dessert were served to the members by hostesses Mrs. Nancy Snyder and Mrs. Donna Irvine.

On Saturday, Feb. 23, Cedarvale Hall was the scene of an invasion of Beta Sigma Phi chapters: Zeta Alpha, Xi Delta Beta and Zeta Phi for their mixed social, "An English Pub Night".

Lorrie Ryan and Kathleen Vickery led in an old fashioned sing-along accompanied by George Hall on piano and Frank Tyrrell on the accordion. The members and their husbands sang to their heart's content to those old favorite songs supplied by John Vickery.

Dancing to taped music followed along with meeting and enjoying the company of Beta Sigma Phi people. This dance was a great success as everyone relaxed in a casual and light hearted atmosphere, enjoying the evening to the fullest. Fish and chips were served to complement the theme.
