TINY TYKE

Georgetown Minor Atoms Georgetown drew a penalty in Scarborough. The locals had themselves an exhibition shortly after the host club had dropped their initial tilt to tussle on Sunday, March 17 with Acton Atoms who are a team composed of Minor and Major players. The locals gave a good account of themselves in this game as they dropped a 4 to 3 decision to their more experienced opponents.

Georgetown opened the scoring at 2.25 of the first stanza when Geordie Adams clicked assisted by Revy Kennedy. The host club came back to knot the bout at 5.55 as loose defensive play contributed to the score. The locals again went ahead at 8.05, Kevin Franks potting one with Mike Doucette assisting.

ONTARIO OUTDOORS

BY BOB OLLIVIER

There is now do doubting the arrival of spring. I have seen robins, correctly called thrush, for the last three weeks. They can be heard as early as 6 a.m. along with the cardinal. I am under the distinct impression that robins winter in the swamps and deep wooded areas, and that there is always about one pair remaining in approximately a 15 square mile area during our winter. The same applies to crows.

Another sign of the spring solstice is the work of poachers in the districts where rainbow trout are commonly found. Large numbers of rainbows are returning from the Georgian Bay waters to their spawning streams in the Collingwood area. That detestable blight on society, the poacher, is hard at work ruining things for everyone else. Every effort is being made by the conservation officers of the Huronia District of the Ministry of Natural Resources to effectively patrol these spawing areas and to apprehend poachers. To date (March 15) they have seized one car and charged four people with the illegal taking of spawning rainbow trout during the closed season. Upon conviction they are liable to a fine of $1,000 and- or six months in jail. Last year the courts finally recognized the seriousness of the poaching problem, and started to make more convictions in Ontario. Up until this time, a conviction was a rarity. COHO

At the recent meeting of the Credit Valley Conservation Authority, Al Wainio, biologist with the Ministry of Natural Resources, announced the planinting of 400,000 fingerling coho salmon in the Credit River. These are being placed in the inglewood area to start, and the program was started this past Monday, March 25. Representatives from local government and the CVCA met the hatchery truck and Mr. Wainio at the junction of the Credit Forks road and the Highway 10 at 11 a.m. and we are looking forward to some great fishing in the next few years. Last fall the Ministry let all the Jacks (immature salmon) through the weir at Cooksville. They checked five per cent of the mature coho and found they averaged 24" and weighed five pounds. They also noted a low scar rate from lamprey and feel that the Lampricide is doing its job. Even less scarring is expected in 1974.

The question of a fish ladder at Streetsville was brought up at the CVCA meeting and the answer was, "If the fishery for the exotic fish species such as coho is worthwhile, then a fish ladder will be considered. Some of the drawbacks to this is the fact that coho spawn and die. Can you imagine a million dead and decaying fish on the banks of the Credit river?" Mr. Wainio is an advocate of the brown trout and feels that the ministry should never have stopped stocking browns in the Credit. He would like to see the Credit river with brown trout in the upper reaches, brook trout in the mid regions, and coho in the lower parts of the river.

ICE FISHING

As you well know, the deadline for the removal of fish huts from Lake Simcoe is March 31. This applies to all bodies of water in the district, and a fine of $1,000 is applied if this ruling is not complied with.

SPORTSMENS SHOW

I still say it was one of the best shows they have ever had. I was down twice and still did not see all I had intended to. At every show there is a new crop of gadgets and it is sometimes hard to sort the good from the useless. One item I found was the Sal-DeHooker.

Often fish are killed by tearing out the hooks. Deep hooked fish, when caught on worms or minnows, such as catfish, pike, muskie, etc., can be released when not wanted for eating. I have a steel rod I made several years back for this task, and I can now get rid of it, as I have a Saf-DeHooker. This new disgorger removes hooks without touching the fish, which will be good news to women who don't like to handle "slimy things."

I met Paul Collins, who holds the patent on this new style disgorger, and the big plus to his creation, says Collins, is that the device removes fish from hooks with minimum damage. In this way you can release all fish over your limit and be assured that they will live.

In regards to the point that you don't have to touch the fish, it will help when you take the kids fishing for catfish, where the spines can inflict damage. All you do is thread the line on the gadget, follow it down to the hook, pull the line and squeeze the trigger and the fish drops off.

If you want the address of the Canadian supplier or more information, write to me and I will send you the information required. Another great help for the fisherman or the hunter using boats or near the water, such as duck hunting, is the floater. This is a coat that guarantees to float the user even if torn. They are manufactured in Vancouver and just being introduced to eastern Canada. The coat has a heavy duty nylon shell and a flotation material called Ensolith. It is made up of millions of "air encapsulated" cells, and the outer shell is completely waterproof. Their survival suit is widely used by bush pilots in the far north, and will keep you warin to 50 degrees below zero. Also available are a complete range of colors and sizes, also suitable for women and children.

News from Outdoor Canada magazine. It has taken over the circulation of the well known but little read magazine Rod and Gun in Canada. If you have a subscription to the Rod and Gun you will now receive the Outdoor Canada publication beginning with its July issue. Next week, a plastic lure that swims. As I have said on many occasions, never a duil moment in ONTARIO OUTDOORS.

Last weekend was a rest period from tournaments as far as the Youth Bowling Council was concerned. The scores rolled are still first rate as our Youth Bowlers keep sharp for future tournaments.
