HIGH SCHOOL INSIGHTS

High Quiz Sponsored By High School

Georgetown's own high school quiz program begins tonight (7 p.m.) on Georgetown Cable T.V. High Quiz is a contest sponsored by Georgetown District High School (GDHS) and tests students' powers of quick thinking, logic and intelligence. Tonight, six grade nine students (a panel of three representing house A and another representing house B) will be battling it out to gain points for their houses. Teachers and students have been busy preparing for the event since the end of February. Questions has to be thought up and screened, contestants selected and the set for the show created. The GDHS technical department has provided the show with a buzzer system and Mr. Todd is the teacher representative for the contest.

There will be three competitions in each of the grade levels. When the grade nine competitions are over, the grade 10-11 and grade 12-13 begin. The 10-11 contests will be shown on Cable 5 Monday nights at 7 p.m. and the 12-13 contests in the Wednesday night time slot. The organizers are examining the possibilities of getting sponsors to provide prizes for the winners. Fast-moving and challenging, High Quiz is more than just a high school quiz show. It is designed for audience participation. Tune in tonight and test your skill against Georgetown's best.
