Music Teachers Hold First Meeting

On Sunday, Sept. 8, the new executive of the Georgetown Trinity Music Teacher's Association (GTTA) took their places to open the first meeting of the 1974-75 teaching season. Following elections at the June 1974 meeting the new executive stands as follows: President, Norine Noble of Limehouse; vice-president, Judi Petherick of Alton; honorary president, D. R. Scull of Ballinafad; secretary, Faye Pinks of Acton; treasurer, Ruth Wightman of Guelph; public relations, Anne Melcombe of Georgetown, auxiliary member, Debra Borefield of Acton.

Plans for the coming season were discussed in general, for the fall term in more detail. December 10 was set as the tentative date for the annual Christmas recital to be held at Knox church in Georgetown. Teachers were asked to submit participants' names at the November meeting.

Awards will be presented at the recital to qualifying students who received honors marks in the June sitting of the music theory examinations of Trinity College of London.

One of the purposes of the GTTA is to provide a constant stimulus and continuing education for the teacher-members, through their students cannot fail to advantage. To this end it was decided that a different topic of study will be covered each month, ranging from the history of music, to the construction of the piano, to the basic psychology involved in teaching.
