GDHS Insights Three more days

By Tom Bushey There are only three days left before the Christmas holidays, and the enthusiasm among the students is increasing. Everyone is looking forward to this break in the year. It gives them a time to rest so that they can do better in January. Tomorrow is "Grads Day" at GDHS. The senior students will have an opportunity to hear what some of the school's recent graduates have experienced in their encounter with the "real" world. Perhaps all the students should go to pick up a few hints and to say hello to the students who left the school last year. It should be a worthwhile adventure with "old" friends. The Christmas dance is tomorrow evening. The dance should be as successful as other dances at the school. The group, Southcote, is supposed to be fantastic. Next year's option sheets and course description books are scheduled to be distributed to the students in January so perhaps it is just about time to start thinking about the possibilities of next year!

JUST CLOWNING AROUND, at least for part of the time. These two lovable clowns took time off from their busy schedule to entertain the children of Park School at their Christmas party last Thursday. When the fun was over the pair decided to drop into the hospital and entertain the children there but luckily no children were in for the holiday season.
