More Festival of Values winners

ANOTHER LUCKY WINNER, Antonette Arrigo, 13, receives her "Festival of Values" prize from Mrs. Lida Langedyk, of Georgetown Hobbies and Crafts.

GUNNAR'S MEAT MARKET was the scene for another presentation in the Festival of Values sponsored by the Herald and participating merchants. This week's winner was Marjorie Flower of Acton. "I'll soon be moving to Georgetown. This is a lovely gift," added Mrs. Flower.

INTERNATIONAL COOKING is a popular choice of the boys at Holy Cross School, who found out learning can be fun, when principal Richard Perrott, taught them how to make a pizza last week. The course is part of an elective program designed to break up the winter "Blahs", give students a chance to mix with other classes, and learn new things. From left the boys are John Vito, Willy Cawley, Desmond Rafferty, Marty Boyle, Marty Power and John Lehman.

Rolls switching

International Women's Year hasn't caught on with the young ladies at Holy Cross School, although several adventurous boys have wandered into female-dominated activities. In a special elective program held every Tuesday at the school for the senior grades, both boys and girls were given equal opportunity to sign up for any course they wanted. The choices were International cooking, sewing, woodworking, macrame, model building, theatre arts and a school newspaper.

The number of girls who were drawn to feminine activities would make the liberationists hang their heads. Not one signed up for woodworking or model building. The boys, however, dominated the cooking class, where they along with some young ladies are learning "the art of cuisine" around the world.

Principal Perrott, who teaches the course, is thrilled with the way the boys construct a pizza as if it was a work of art. The elective program was introduced to break up the week, and add a little variety to the curriculum.

ADVENTURE IN LEARNING for Jeff Brioux and Mike Mielch, both 12, is the sewing class open to both boys and girls. Mike helps Geoff thread the machine with the right color thread before stitching the lined vests they are making with the help of Mrs. Jill Lamont, the teacher.
