ONE OF THE COMPETITORS in the Chess Tournament held at Centennial Senior Public School was John Hayward from Fairview Public School. Eleven schools competed in the tournament held last Saturday.

Centennial Senior Public School in Georgetown hosted a chess tournament last weekend in which 11 schools from the area participated.

Each participant was placed into a class according to the standings the child ranked in chess playing. Trophies were given to the highest scorer in each class and a trophy was also given to the school which obtained the most points.

Schools competing included; Centennial, Park, Stewarttown, Harrison, Kennedy, Montclair, Martin St., Frontenac, Fairview, Eastview and Dr. Charles Best School.

The school which won the overall trophy was Montclair with Centennial obtaining second place standing.

Individual trophy winners were: King division, Kevin Neill from Centennial; Queen, William Reinke from Mart St. School; Rook, David Downy, Montclair School; Knight, Brian MacLeod, Centennial School and Pawn, Steve McGirr from Montclair School.

GREG LAWR, a Park Public School student, was one of the participants in the Chess Tournament, sponsored by Centennial Senior Public School last Saturday. Centennial School was runners up to Montclair Public School.

Car enthusiasts look for new home

Mention car clubs and the thought that probably immediately pops up is that of loud engines, late night noises and screeching tires.

That's the stigma Cars Incorporated, a 15-member Georgetown car club, are fighting at the moment as they look for a new site for their club's activities. Thus far it hasn't been an easy task.

The club presently occupies a leaky garage on Main Street North. The building which is used both as a workshop and a club house, is slated for future demolition forcing the car club out onto the streets.

John Graff, representing the club, appeared before the town's subsidiary planning board last week to get permission to relocate their headquarters to an abandoned barn on the property of Mme. Teresa St. Jean, located on 15 Slideroad, between the Fifth and Sixth Lines.

"The barn is ideal," noted Mr. Graff. "We went to the committee to get permission before we moved in because we want to draw up a legal lease and make that place our home. The barn will need extensive renovations before it will be ready for use, but this would be done at our own expense."

Weekly dues, he explained, paid by the members of the club, would finance the building and the needed renovations.

The suggestion, however, was turned down by the planning board, forcing Cars Incorporated to look for another site.

Councillors on the committee were concerned with the feeling of the residents on the neighboring properties bordering the St. Jean property, and their reaction to the activities of the club in what is now a rural agricultural setting.

The present location of the club will be torn down to become a parking lot by the summer. "We need a place before that," said Mr. Graff.

"We have a good relationship with our present neighbors." One of the two houses bordering the Cars Incorporated clubhouse is less than four feet from the garage, while the other is separated by a laneway.

"One of the neighbors borrows tools from us and we help him with his car," noted Mr. Graff.

"Our closest neighbor will be 20 acres away," added Mr. Graff. "It was that neighbor who informed the club of the property."

Cars Incorporated, formerly "The Majestics" has been located at its present location for the past two years.

"We need an open area to work on our cars and a warm, dry place to hold meetings," said Mr. Graff. "We would not want to move in and renovate without permission. We want to find a permanent home."
