

Col. Barber honoured

The Lorne Scots Regiment of the Halton, Peel and Dufferin regions held their annual Church Parade in Georgetown this past Sunday honoring Colonel John R. Barber of 44 Market St. in Georgetown for his 50 years of service in the regiment.

The parade proceeded from the Georgetown Armoury across Park Avenue to the Knox Presbyterian church where the church service was held. Reverend Peter Barrow of the Presbyterian Church introduced Padre French of the Regiment who conducted the annual service. A school-chum and a life-long friend of Col. Barber, Colonel Major Ross Cameron D.D. who was guest speaker for the church's anniversary was a special guest at the service. The Regimental Pipe Band, conducted by Pipe Major J. Sellers, and the Regimental Brass Band played the hymns for the service and as a special tribute played "Amazing Grace" together. The Church Parade left the church and proceeded down Main Street where the March Past was taken, all saluting the honored Colonel. The parade marched past the cenotaph at Remembrance Park and on to the armoury where a reception was held. Colonel Barber joined the Georgetown company of the Lorne Scots in 1925 and served with the regiment until he went overseas for active duty in 1940. Returning to Georgetown in 1947 Col. Barber was commissioned as Second in Command of the regiment. In 1949 he was honored as Commander and he remained in that position until 1954. In 1957 Col Barber held the position of Honorary Lieutenant Colonel and in 1963 he was commissioned as Honorary Colonel of the Lorne Scots.

Not wolves

The pack of wolves that have been preying on area livestock and forcing sheep producers out of business may not be true wolves but a cross between wolf and wild dog. According to Joe Curly of the Halton Hills Animal Control Services, hunters bringing dogs purchased for only hunting from Toronto shelters abandon them in the area frequently, leaving them to fend for themselves. The dogs pact together with wolves and produce semi-domesticated pups that have little or no fear of humans. The absence of fear brings them closer to farms and livestock become easy prey for the crafty hunters. Estimated losses have gone as high as ten percent for area sheep producers based on their annual production forecasts. "The main area of wolf activity is between the 10 and 5 Sideroads bordered by the Ninth and Tenth lines," explained Mr. Curly. "In the past the lands and forest people have organized hunts to eliminate the killers." Wolves resembling skinny, underfed Shepherd dogs have been spotted just a mile and a half from town. Timber wolves, the large of the wolf species, have been sighted as far south as Hillsburgh in recent years. "Poor hunting in the areas is one of the reasons why the wolf population has become rampant," said Mr. Curly. Land owners in the rural sectors can discharge firearms to protect their own livestock under section six, subsection "E" of the firearms regulation bylaw 75-45 and under the Dog Tax and Livestock Poultry Protection Act, 1970 Chapter 133. Once snow falls, Mr. Curly feels that the wolves will be easy to track and destroy to reduce the problem for next season.

Scout injured

Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Anderson entertained all members of their family and her niece and her three children of Blenheim, Ont. over the Thanksgiving weekend. We are pleased to hear that Mr. Goodwin is up and about again following a motor accident at Stewarttown two weeks ago. Congratulations to Ted Brown and Cathy Lindsay who were married by Rev. Peter Barrow at Limehouse Presbyterian Church on Saturday. The reception followed at the curling club in Acton. The W.A. women catered for a turkey dinner following the Brown-Lindsay wedding. We hope that Mrs. E. Sanford may make a good recovery after surgery on both feet in Toronto on Friday. We extend sympathy to Mrs. William Sanford whose father,

Mr. Kennedy, passed away in hospital in Guelph on Saturday. Mr. J. Archibald, a student at Knox College, Toronto, conducted the service at Limehouse Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning. Services will revert to 9:45 again on October 26. One of a group of Scouts hiking on the Bruce Trail on Sunday, fell, injuring his hip. Mr. Bert Benton, a neighbouring farmer took him to the Georgetown hospital for treatment. We hope his injury was not too serious.
