Norval News New leaders for Guides

By Mrs. Dorothy McLean
Eleven girls were enrolled in the Norval Guides on Tuesday evening, October 28th in a special enrollment ceremony held in Norval Presbyterian Church.

Commissioner Barbara Neuman and mothers of the Guides were present for the special occasion.

Enrolled were: Nancy Maw, Melanie Cooper, Cindy Hunter, Laura Annable, Sharon Gainer, Maureen Hodgins, Peggy Mooten, Joanne Hunter, Tricia Adams, Michelle DuFour and Emma Morrow.

Five Guides who are working for their hostess badges served tea and cookies following the ceremony.

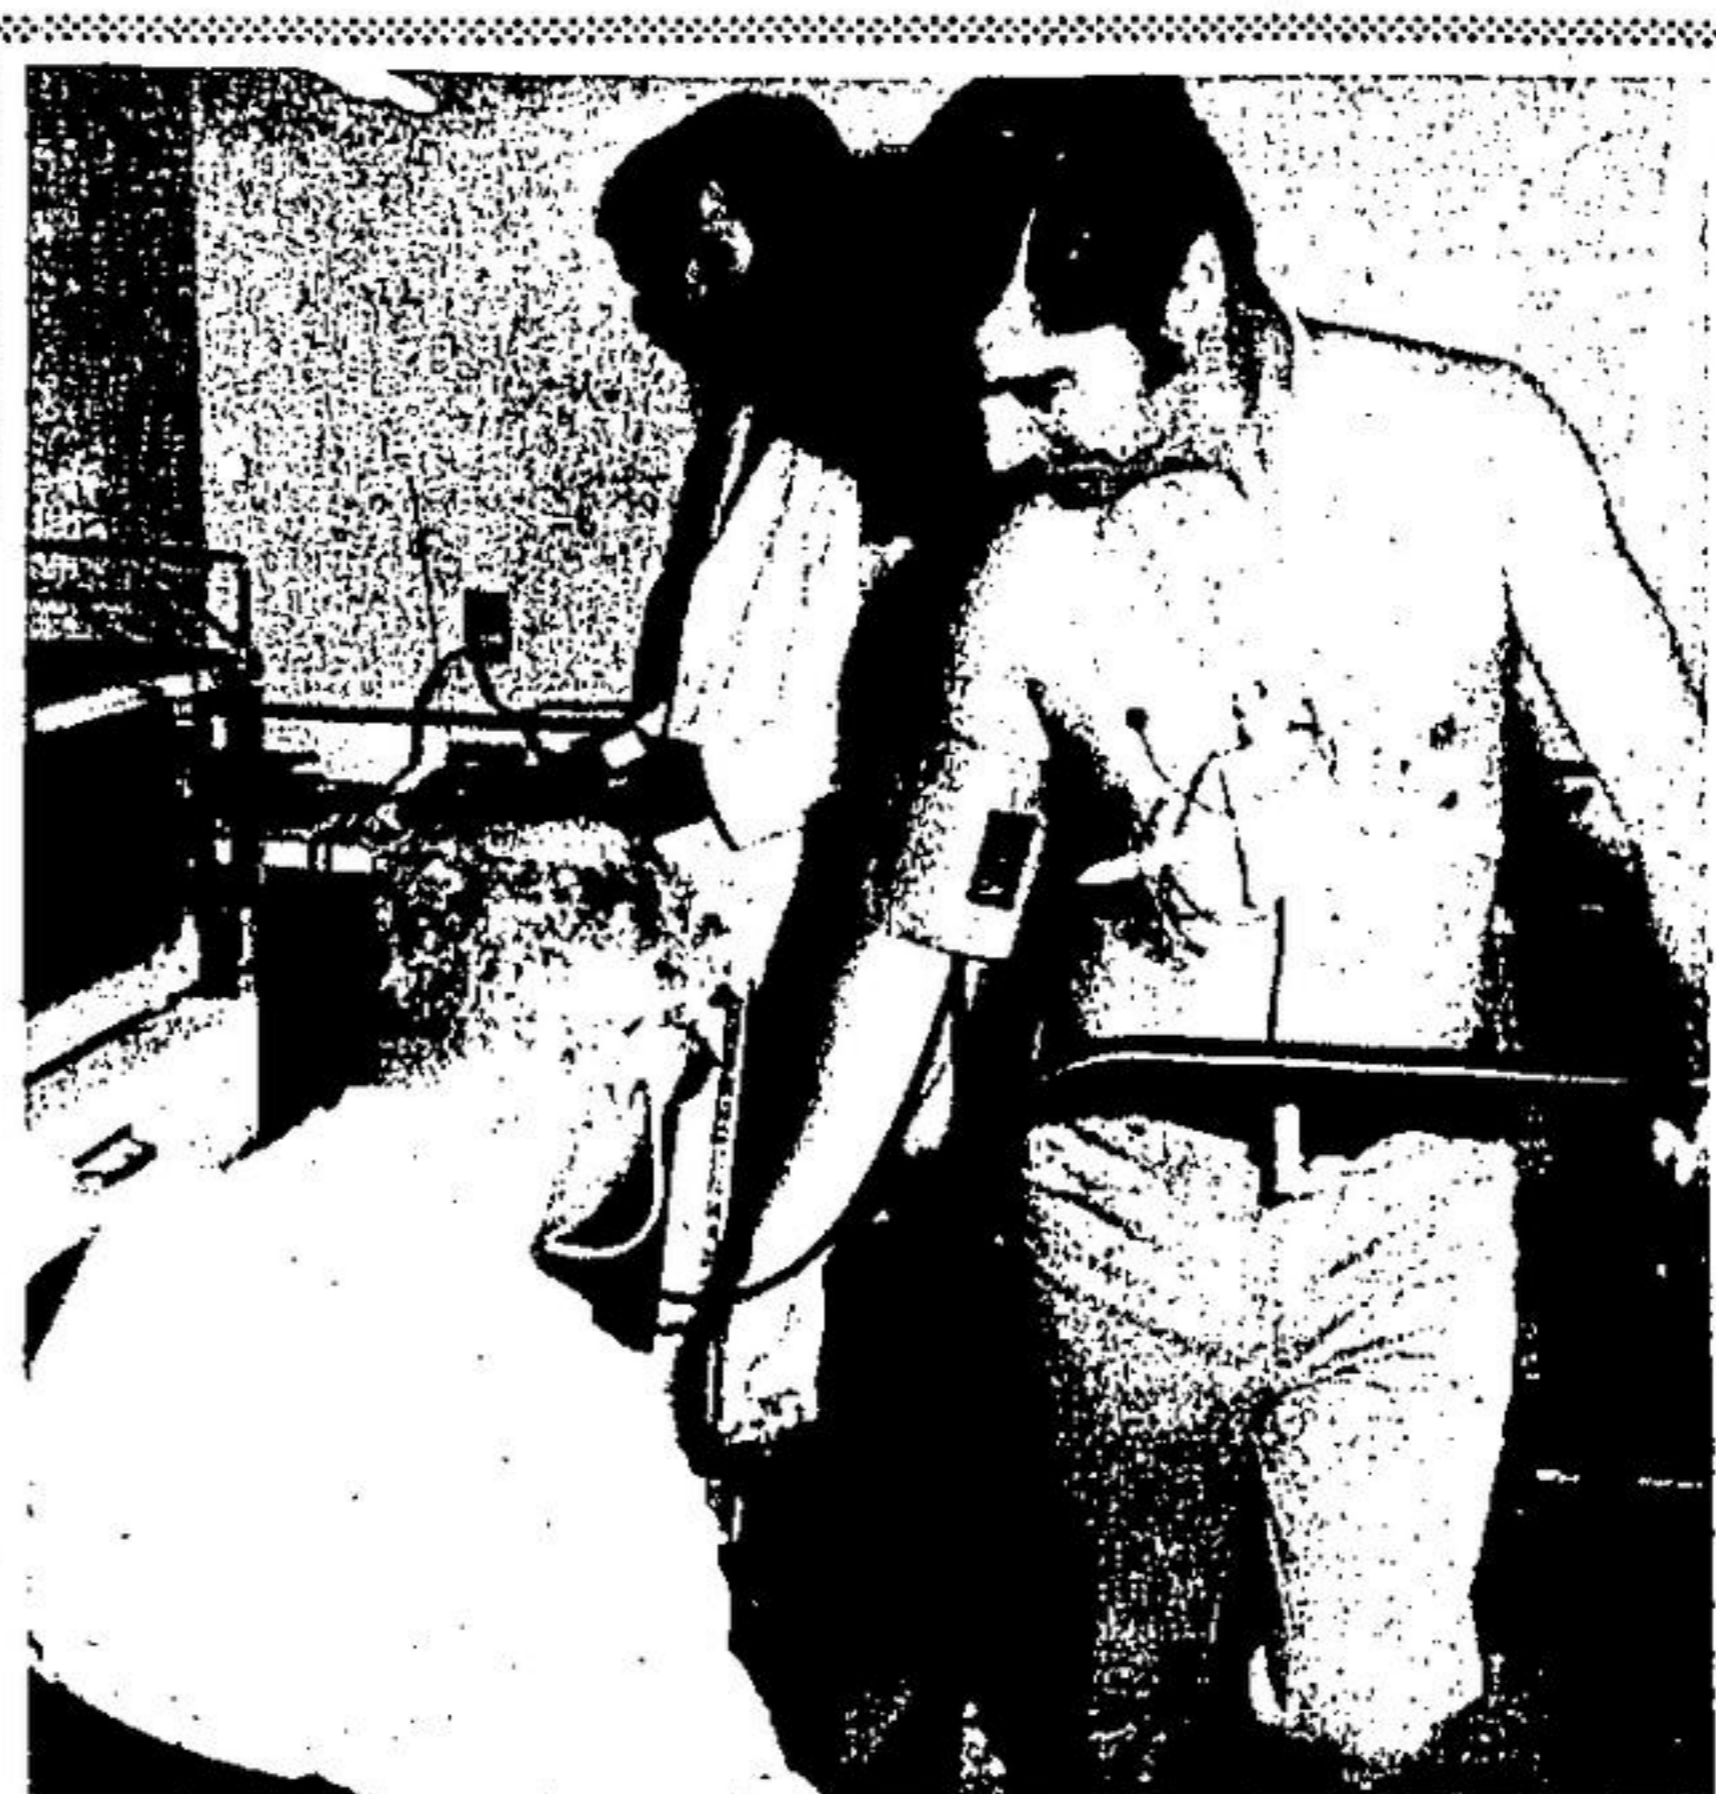

The Norval Guides are fortunate in having new leaders this year. They are Captain Linda Adams, Lieutenant Rose Woodworth, and Lieutenant Glenda Barton. There are 24 Guides which includes two girls yet to be enrolled.

Norval Brownies enjoyed a Halloween party as guests of the 1st Pineview Brownies held in Hillcrest United Church recently.

The 50 Brownies enjoyed dunking for apples and other games of fun, the highlight being a Mexican game. A paper mache pumpkin full of candles was hung from the ceiling and the girls took turns hitting it with a stick to try to break it. All girls had a turn before the pumpkin broke spilling its contents on the floor. The Brownies scrambled after the candles until they were all picked up. There are 27 girls attending the Norval Brownies with Mrs. Dianne Taylor as Brown Owl, Mrs. Shirley Johnson as Tawny Owl, and Mrs. Iala McConnell as Woody Owl. Mrs. Barbara Neuman is Brown Owl of the 1st Pineview Brownies.

Seven new Brownies were enrolled into the Norval pack on Monday evening, November 3rd. Halloween in Norval was a very quiet evening this year. Not nearly as many children were out knocking on doors for their "trick or treat" as usual. Perhaps the cold weather stopped them from going as far as they usually go on their rounds of the homes. There were about 60 costumed youngsters calling on the homes on Draper St. and about 30 visiting the homes at the east end of the village. The teenagers were not up to their usual tricks of former years. A few eggs and firecrackers were thrown at the main corner of the village early in the evening but by 9 p.m. everything was as quiet as an ordinary Friday evening. A few of the children carried UNICEF boxes but they were more interested in receiving their own treat than a donation for UNICEF.

Lloyd Sedore of Shelbourne, formerly of Norval, died on Thursday October 30th. He was buried in Hillcrest Cemetery, Norval, on Saturday afternoon. The Sedore family lived in Norval during the 1950's when Mr. Sedore owned the service station in the middle of the village. He is survived by his wife Hattie, daughters Lucille (Mrs. R. Ryal) Esther (Mrs. G. Hendry) and Ilene (Mrs. K. Dale), and sons, Lloyd Jr., Dale, and Jeffery. He was predeceased by a son Carl. Mrs. F. C. Shipp of Essex Ontario spent a few days recently visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Wilson in their

THE STRESS TESTING GEAR at the Georgetown District Memorial Hospital, gets a daily workout as area doctors can now diagnose heart problems. Doctor Allister MacIntosh with Elmer Lopick test the physical condition of hospital employee Derek Kennedy to demonstrate the unit, donated by Elks Lodge 540.

Newest machine monitors stress

Perhaps one of the most useful heart diagnostic tools is now in use at Georgetown District Memorial Hospital thanks to a donation made by the local Elks Lodge.

Doctors can now determine how the heart is functioning under physical stress, at rest and also (through the use of another piece of equipment) can measure the lung capacity of the patient.

Doctor A. E. MacIntosh administers these tests to patients on the advice of their family physician to evaluate heart-lung problems.

The test takes up to a half-an-hour and during that time all functions of the heart and respiratory system are monitored electronically for immediate comparison with known standards set by heart specialists.

A treadmill, calibrated in miles per hour (with speeds as high as 4.5 miles per hour) and with a fully adjustable gradient to increase the work load of the heart was donated by the Elks Lodge at an approximate cost of $2,500.

While conducting the tests doctors record an electrocardiograph strip, monitor blood pressure and heart rate and make general observations regarding the patient's response to the physical strain caused by the exercise.

A permanent strip is marked with notes on various stages of the test for future reference by other doctors should consultation be necessary. Data for the ECG is obtained through electrodes placed on the patient's chest with the impulses transmitted to the receivers and the ECG unit located within the stress testing room.

The spirometer can measure the patient's lung capacity and judge how much of the oxygen the lung is taking in as actually reaching the heart through the combined test.

Old methods of stress testing such as running up and down stairs have been rendered obsolete by this method which lets doctors compare the heart's response with a known standard of performance.

"We run the patient to his maximum to determine how the heart is working," explained Dr. MacIntosh. "This test will determine how physically fit the patient really is."

Once the test is completed the rest cycle of the heart is also carefully observed for unusual signs of stress that were not evident in the primary test.

The "crash cart" is also located at the test centre and contains all the necessary equipment to revive any patient that has become unconscious or is suffering from a heart attack.

Suspected heart problems can now be analyzed at the hospital without the necessity of a trip into the city for the same comprehensive test.

Annual grants for Guides?

Town council decided that special circumstances can warrant groups such as the Girl Guides receiving grants from the town.

Councillor Ern Hyde questioned at Monday night's town council meeting a recommendation made the week before by the finance and personnel committee that a grant of $500 be made to the Girl Guides of Halton Hills to assist them in buying needed camping equipment.

"I would suggest this is a first for us," commented Councillor Hyde in noting that normally individual groups' requests for funding are more closely studied before approval is granted.

Chairman of the personnel and finance committee Councillor Harry Levy, however, explained that the grant was "purely for purchase of camping equipment. It's a one time only grant."

Councillor Roy Booth, suggested that Halton Hills should do as many other municipalities do: give an annual grant to local Boy Scouts and Girl Guides organizations. "This should be an on-going thing. Many other municipalities provide annual grants, why shouldn't we?"

Guidelines for handing out municipal grants are going to be reviewed by the personnel and finance committee, noted Councillor Levy.

Missionaries' release welcomed

The news of the release of Canadian missionaries Norman and Joan Johnson from a Vietnamese prison late last week came as a great relief to the people of the Georgetown Alliance Church.

The Johnsons, formerly of Burlington, became missionaries to Viet Nam with The Christian and Missionary Alliance. Their captivity, which began in March of this year, ended when they and ten compatriots were released Thursday. The people of Georgetown Alliance Church were involved in regular prayer and were in close communication with their MP Dr. Frank Philbrook on behalf of the Johnsons. Letters to Dr. Philbrook brought swift replies with assurances of his support in securing the missionaries' freedom.

"Through the secretary of state for external affairs, East Asia division, I have requested an immediate and thorough investigation of this case," Dr. Philbrook reported to Pastor Peter Ralph of the Georgetown Alliance Church. Pastor Ralph stated that the prayer and letter support among the congregation has been so strong that each fresh news report about the missionaries brings several related calls from his people.

The biggest question yet unanswered is whether the released missionaries include three who have been in captivity since 1962. No word on their fate has ever been released by the Vietnamese. Pastor Ralph hopes to have the Johnsons speak to the congregation in the new year.

Camera club develops plans

The Halton Hills Camera Club has finally seen the dark! At this Thursday's meeting of the Halton Hills camera club the group will meet to discuss the financial arrangements to be made to outfit the permanent darkroom for use by the club. The Halton Hills recreation department has authorized the use of the board room at Cedarvale as a workroom by the group.
