It sometimes happens, for inexplicable reasons, that a team just can't get up for what is regarded as a crucial game. This is what happened to the Raiders on Friday night and so their efforts over the last few weeks in search of the league title may all come to naught.

Regardless of where they finish in the league standings, the playoffs are still to come and the Raiders have always proved the most tenacious in post season play. This year's edition should prove no exception and doubtless will continue to provide their fans
