SPRING FLOODS were noticeably absent from Glen Williams this year and, from a bird's-eye view, taken a number of weeks ago (courtesy of the Guelph Air Service) this is the reason why. Good timing by officials of the Credit Valley Conservation Authority in blasting away the ice blockage above the Paper Mill Dam resulted in a clear pathway allowing further ice and water to travel through unimpeded during the remaining week of winter. This picture was taken two days after the major blasting had taken place. Immediately above the dam the Credit River is clear but a small jam of ice was creating problems on the small western channel. Fortunately that jam was broken up by a further ice flow from further up the river had a chance to come down. Although minor flooding of homes adjacent to the river was experienced the blasting of Glen residents are crediting the blasting of Mike Marko with the avoidance of last year's serious spring floods. However, one Glen resident added that the money being spent annually by the CVCA in clearing ice jams from the river channel might be better spent on clearing away, permanently, the reported reason for those jams, the Paper Mill Dam. As yet there's no indication of any such thoughts among members of the authority.

85 percent of cancer can be treated

Breast Self-Examination This simple monthly examination is the best screening test available for detecting changes in the breast. Yet a large percentage of Canadian women don't practise breast self-examination. What are their reasons? Well, some say that they are too busy, or don't know how, or they aren't concerned about breast cancer. For others, fear and anxiety lead to avoidance and neglect of the simple BSE technique. What are your reasons for not practising BSE? Think about it. Most lumps are not cancerous. As much as 85 percent of breast cancer can be cured if detected early enough. Learn how to do BSE and do it regularly. The Rotary Annex of Georgetown and the Canadian Cancer Society are hosting a BSE forum Wednesday, April 7 at Georgetown District High School beginning at 8 o'clock.
