

Fun and games, food and bargains, contests and balloons. And it was all in aid of the Georgetown District Christian School.

Friday and Saturday the hall of Holy Cross Church was turned into a midway as supporters of the Christian School held a bazaar and carnival in aid of the school's current drive for funds.

Helping to raise money proved to be both profitable and enjoyable for the many people who attended the event.

The enjoyment included games of chance—such as shuffleboard and darts—some skill testing questions and even a test of endurance operated by the Couples Club.

That required anyone daring enough to pedal, on an exercise, as hard as he could for two minutes and then see who could go the farthest. (The Herald's unofficial entry in the contest, editor Bill Johnston, didn't fare too well. He did pedal 8 miles but that was short of the one mile pedaled by the Saturday morning leader, Richard Van Dyke, who just so happened to be running the contest. Hmm?)

A WIDE CHOICE was available for the wise shoppers Saturday morning at the bazaar and carnival held at Holy Cross. Here Anne Vanderlaan readsies some of the articles of clothing on sale.

THE MAN TO BEAT—Richard Van Dyke set the pace for all other pedallers Saturday morning in the booth operated by the Couples Club. Point of the contest was to see how far those who dared try it could pedal the exercycle in two minutes. Richard managed one mile in two minutes, or 30 mph.

THE BALLOON MAN. Mark Herema once again was on hand for the carnival with balloons, balloons, and more balloons.

ALBERT FLIKKEMA and Peter Westein were in charge of this booth which offers a wide variety of plants and gardening tools.

WHAT WILL THEY CATCH?—Marian Borg (left) and Judy Schreiber were in charge of the fish pond at Saturday's carnival in aid of the Georgetown District Christian School.
