Julian Reed MPP, Halton-Burlington

Chesley and District Memorial Hospital and Willett Hospital in Paris appear to be on solid ground in seeking provincial financing to continue in operation for a further six months.

The Acting Health Minister has indicated that the two hospitals will receive the same consideration as Toronto's Doctor's Hospital, Clinton Public Hospital and Durham Memorial Hospital, which will be receiving financing to continue operating during the Government's appeal against a Divisional Court ruling on the legality of its hospital closing procedure.

Incidentally, the Ontario Medical Association has stated that it will demand a say in any future decisions by the provincial government to close hospitals. A spokesman for the OMA said the organization is violently opposed to the way
