

Stewarttown graduate

June 21 was a turning point in the lives of Stewarttown's Senior Public School's grade eight students: It was Graduation Day. Georgetown District High School had a full house to applaud Stewarttown's recipients. The top mark of 91.6 percent qualified Kathryn Whaley for the Stewarttown Senior Proficiency Trophy. Following closely was the student with the second highest academic standing, Doug Fisher, with 91.2 percent. Wendy Rogers was the recipient of the Stewarttown

D.R. Magwood Award for being the most improved female student from year 7 to 8, while William Humphreys deserved the Stewarttown J. Lenz Award for the same achievement in the boys category. Honoured with Citizenship Awards were Kathryn Whaley and David Chamberlain.

For being chosen Best Athletes of the Year, Wendy Rogers and Derek Ferguson were presented with the Sylvia Brown and Milton Brown respectively. Congratulations to the following subject award winners: Heidi Deaville (Art); Mary Lynn Morrow (English); Soraya Sanatgar (Family Studies); Kathryn Whaley (French); Wayne Best (Industrial Arts); James Allan (Math); Michelle Rowe (Music); Leslie Rand (Science); Shelia Johnson (Social Science).

Clad in formal attire, seven classes of students who will commence high school in the fall received their diplomas in an efficiently paced procession.

Master of Ceremonies Mr. G. Bassett, introduced principal Mr. L. MacDonald, Halton Board of Education Trustee Tom Watson and vice-principal Mr. L. Cigien as guest speakers. Graduates celebrated the occasion with a party afterwards at Stewarttown.

Lenz Award for most improved boy student from grade 7 to 8.

Art in the Park

"Art in the Park", the Credit Valley Artisans' original craft products sale, will be the focal point of a family day in Georgetown's Cedarvale Park this Saturday.

Artisans will display a variety of craft products including pottery, macrame, weaving and stitching, and some will demonstrate methods used in these crafts. Among the other activities will be a tug-of-war between ambulance volunteers and members of the fire department, pony rides, music by the Georgetown Girls Pipe Band, and exhibition games played by the Georgetown Minor Soccer League.

The special events have been planned to promote the sale and to attract and encourage more people to become creatively involved in the various crafts through the Credit Valley Artisans program. "We hope this sale will allow us to buy more equipment so we can involve more people in our classes and workshops," noted Honey Cornfoot, president of the 91-member Credit Valley Artisans.

Over the past several months the Artisans have held classes in a building in the park, and a pottery kiln is available to all members.

Fierce competition in the ice cream contest

The first ever Halton Hills Olde Time Ice Cream Eating Contest is shaping up to be a real battle of taste buds. Further elimination rounds took place over the weekend from which two new age category champions emerged.

Sean Stroud has taken the lead in the boys under 10 category gobbling down a three-scoop ice cream cone in a time of six minutes and 26 seconds. Steve Archibald has taken the lead in the boys 10 to 18 category with a time of one minute and two seconds.

Harlow's 49-second mark still the top time to beat.

Real competition is developing to see who will be the top six entrants in each of the six age categories to go on to the finals during Pioneer Days.

The finals will take place Saturday at 2:30 at the Kentners booth on Main Street. Final eliminations will take place tonight (Wednesday) at Kentners. There's a 25 cent entry fee which will go to the North Halton Association for the Mentally Retarded.

The ice cream eating contest is being sponsored by Kentners Dairy Bar, Steen's Dairy of Erin and the Halton Hills Herald.

Holy Cross awards, pins presented to deserving students

Holy Cross Junior students got what they deserved from principal Barry Gowan Monday afternoon: crests, indicating their achievements throughout the year.

Honoured for excelling in Religion were Virginia Whitehead, Kelly Ann Brown, Hermanda Galvao, Natalie Marinko, Michelle Hoguw, Rory Kennedy and Lisa Neil. General Proficiency awards were accepted by Christina Mijatovic, Richard Styka, Cindy Kavanagh, Kelly Citara, and Ken Dalton.
