

THAT'S MY DAD!

Technicalities delay debate on chairmanship resolution

Procedural technicalities have further delayed, this time to April 14, discussion by the Halton Board of Education on the controversial issue of headship versus chairmanship organization of its high schools.

Proposed over two weeks ago by Trustee Don Long, the motion would force the board to consider alternate methods of organizing high schools on an issue which as the teachers in the seven schools to be affected up in arms and may prove a stumbling block in collective bargaining. The motion was tabled.

Teachers have put successful embargo on applications for about 180 chairmanship positions and the board has reaffirmed its intention of mandatory imposition of the chairmanship system by September in the seven schools, Georgetown and district high school included, still under headship organization.

Mr. Long has called for a more thorough examination of advantages and disadvantages of both systems before the board becomes the only one in Ontario with the chairmanship system in all its 16 schools.

On Thursday, Mr. Long withdrew his motion to lift from the table his previous motion after learning from board chairman Rev. Gary Morton the technicalities that could kill discussion on the issue. Rev. Morton told trustees that the motion to lift the original motion must be without amendments and without debate. As well, it must carry by a two-thirds majority, he said. It does not need a notice of motion, the normal procedure trustees use to advise the board of an upcoming action, but can be introduced as new business.

However, Rev. Morton said after the meeting adjourned that should Long's motion to consider alternate methods of organization "be boosted"—the parliamentary term that describes the action—by a two-thirds majority, it must be debated to a conclusion.
