

Pie baking contest
sends judge into rapture

Texture of the pie must be rated first

M-m-m Tasty?

A pause to reflect

The moment of truth

Pioneer Days 1977 ...the way it was

Rain didn't dampen the spirits of the people on Main Street Saturday as Pioneer Days came to a close. Most huddled under shop windows and doors waiting for the brief downpour to subside. In a draw at Fletcher's Shoe Store, Karen Wilson of 344 Maple Avenue, Georgetown won a skateboard. In a special draw by Union Gas Limited for a gas barbecue, the official draw was delayed by rain and made Monday by Coun. Peter Pomeroy. The winner is Hartley Smerk of 58 Shelley St., Georgetown.

The Pioneer Days celebration featured a pie baking contest which saw eight entries. Judge Jim Langedyk, of Langcraft, stole the show as he "dramatically" tasted each entry and made a selection as winner. Winner of the first prize is Marg Carter of Park Street for a strawberry cream cheese pie; second, Monika Lake, of Delrex Boulevard for a lemon chiffon pie; and third, Barbara Patzer of Delrex Boulevard for a peach crumb pie.

Local songwriter and performer Bill Clint vocalizes in the Credit Valley Conservation Authority buggy as he was paraded through the displays on Main Street drumming up attendance for the talent show. The talent contest was won by Terry Hallett with runners-up Ted Wheeler and Rob Stubbs. Maureen Corrigan came third.

Credit Valley Conservation Authority Experience '77 staffers Doreen McGillivray, left, and Vicki Stewart, stand astride the horse drawn road grader that was part of the conservation authority's display on Main Street. The CVCA also displayed a buggy and pioneer artifacts.

Herald photos
By Bob Rutter

Sally Coleman of Guver Court won first prize in the best-dressed pet contest Saturday for modelling the home-made outfits on Toy Poodles Petite and Gal-Lie, mother and daughter.

Five-year-old Kyle Goodlet, of RR 5, Georgetown, isn't too sure of the intentions of The Herald photographer as he continues to munch on cotton candy, one of the many features of last week's Pioneer Days celebrations.

Hadyn Evans drew onlookers all day Saturday as he held impromptu concerts on Main Street outside the Barber Piano and Organ shop. The accomplished pianist also played requests for shoppers along the street.

Emma Gelok, 21 months, seems a bit flabbergasted by it all as Hazle, one of a pair of clowns at the Pioneer Day celebration gives her a balloon. Emma is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Gelok of Main Street, Glen Williams.

Georgetown Little Theatre played to an enthusiastic audience on Main Street as it portrayed the days of travelling troupes of actors. In this scene the supporting cast awaits its cue as "The Villain" makes advances on "Sweet Sue" during the melodrama. Audience participation was assured as cue cards indicated when to "Boo" or "Ahhh" as the situation demanded. Winners of the 611.T draw are: Roelle Eisinga of Brampton; Francis Anthony and Norman C. Carlisle, both of Georgetown.

Downtown merchant Bob Gougeon removes the beard and moustache he grew especially for the Pioneer Days celebrations in a ceremony in the middle of Main Street late Saturday afternoon. Holding the mirror is merchant Jim Goodlet.