ADAPT staff increase

ADAPT, a program to aid people with a chemical drug dependency has proved so successful in its past 18 months that it is expanding services.

Regional council last week approved an additional public health nurse to be added to the program to help co-ordinator Norma Lounsbury, the only full-time staff member, who is handling the program throughout Halton.

Cost of the additional person

Breathing clinic

Adults suffering from any form of respiratory disease are invited to attend the Halton Lung Association's free Better Breathing clinics being held each week in the physiotherapy department of Joseph Brant Memorial Hospital in Burlington between 6:45 and 7:45 p.m. beginning Sept. 13. The program includes proper breathing and relaxation techniques, exercise, fitness and education about diseases such as bronchitis, asthma and emphysema.

is about $18,000 per year with about $5,700 coming from the 1977 budget to allow for employment until 1978.

Dr. Boyd Hodinott, of Georgetown, a spokesman for the group said the program has treated about 360 people and now has a waiting list for entry.

He said ADAPT program statistics reveal that as much as 40 to 50 per cent of those counselled by the agency have not required hospital treatment. He admitted, however, that specific data is not prepared since it takes about two years to effectively assess a program.

ADAPT, which began at Joseph Brant Hospital in Burlington in February, 1975, and then was expanded into Halton in June, 1976, has been hailed by many to be an innovative approach to dealing with chemical drug addiction.

Mrs. Lounsbury said the municipalities of Etobicoke, Peterborough, and Belleville have sought information on its operation. One request has come from Australia.
