BRIDE OF THE MONTH

Holy Cross Church, Georgetown was the setting for the December 17th. wedding of Sheriann Marie Pritchard and Michael Zuber. Shown with the bride is Andrea Spohn.

Diamond is an investment in beauty, engagement tradition dates back to 1477

Ever wonder why a girl receives a diamond for her engagement? It's all Max and Mary's fault. They started it. Now everyone's doing it. It all began with Princess Mary of Burgandy, the first recipient of a diamond ring for her engagement to Maximilian of Austria on August 17, 1477. It seems that Max, like most young men, was a little unsure and nervous about popping the question so he asked an older man, Dr. Wilhelm Moroltinger for advice on how to impress Mary. The good doctor suggested this Grace must have a ring set with a diamond and also a gold ring. Moreover, in the morning, His Grace must bestow upon his bride some costly jewels. Maximilian followed his advisor's instructions to the letter. He presented Mary with an engagement ring set with a solitaire round diamond, a style incidentally still the traditional favourite. In one of the shorter engagement in history, Mary got her diamond, her Prince Charming, and a tradition was born.

A diamond is an investment in beauty. A diamond is an investment in individuality for no two diamonds are alike. It's an investment in the future, because the diamond, the hardest substance known to man, is forever. when you buy a diamond engagement ring - be choosy! Diamonds say "I love you" and keep on saying it, forever. Once you've made that special purchase, give a thought to care. You can bet that Mary did! Not personally, perhaps, for she more than likely had a complement of staff to handle such details. Moreover, she probably used a different method. But Mary knew, like today's brides, that even though you wear your diamond engagement ring 24 hours a day, it must be kept clean to assure its most brilliant performance.
