Italy is ideal spot for the honeymoon

Traditionalists may prefer Niagara Falls or the Poconos, with exotic heart-shaped bath tubs, but for the honeymooner with a taste for the best, obvious, who wants something charmingly different and that heart-shaped tubs are run-of-the-mill, a 12th century castle in Salerno may be the scene of wish fulfillment or a 14th century palace in Venice. Or a 16th century convent in Taormina. (A convent? On a honeymoon? Well, why not, if nothing else it might turn out to be the conversation piece of many a post-marital dinner party.)

Romance lives! Actually, there are many castles, villas, palaces and convents in Italy that have been converted into hotels, with modern conveniences, of course, and with prices to accommodate a variety of budgets.

If visitors of Capri, Salerno, Florence, Taormina, Venice, Cortina, Portofino, Sorrento, and the reigning dowager of Italy herself, Rome, don't make you light-headed and flutter-hearted, you either need a check-up or your heart is as cold as an understated TV dinner. Certainly the warmth and friendliness of Italians are legendary and the spirit of romance is alive and flourishing.

Old Italian art Whether you choose a city or resort area, you'll quickly discover that hospitality is a fine art perfected by the Italians.

Portofino, in the northern part of Italy, has long been known as one of the most elegant resorts in the world, attracting the rich and famous to its surrounding villas and charming visitors from all walks of life.

Portofino is where Rex Harrison retreated to his private villa and Jackie Onassis may be seen browsing for tank tops in the village marketplace.

Actually an old fishing village, Portofino is reached by a winding coastal road, considered in itself to be one of the most beautiful in the world. The village, clustered around a natural harbor, retains all its traditional characteristics. The climate is temperate in summer and mild in winter, making it an ideal resort for all seasons.

Prima class The Splendido is one example of Italy's best—a magnificent hotel situated above the village of Portofino for a spectacular panoramic view. It offers all the modern amenities: heated pool, sauna, tennis courts, health rooms, excellent cuisine, while maintaining the old style elegance which is the heart of Italian hotel accommodations. For the Splendido you'll need some old style money as well. It's definitely not for the budget-minded. Take heart, there are also several charming, moderately-priced hotels in Portofino.

Bellissimo! If the idea of skiing on Mount Etna and swimming in the Mediterranean appeals to you, both can be found less than two hours by air from Rome in Taormina, the beauty spot of Sicily.

Once there you may rest and nest at the San Domenico Palace Hotel, formerly a 14th century Dominican monastery. Today one of the most striking and beautiful hotels in the world.

Completely restored in 1963, it boasts shadowy cloisters, magnificent halls, gardens scented by orange and jasmine blossoms and monks cells turned into luxury apartments.

Perched 820 feet above the sea, this delightful resort encompasses a view from the Greek amphitheater to the summit of Mount Etna. Swimming pool, private beach and tennis courts in the day, a Sicilian mandolin orchestra serenade in the evening combine to make the San Domenico molto romantico.

Another sunny and popular vacation spot is Italy's fantastic Amalfi coast—a dramatic stretch of green, high cliffs hovering over the Mediterranean. In the town of Amalfi, there are two excellent hotels for honeymooners with a love for the old and romantic: the Hotel Luna and the Hotel Cappuccini Convento, both you guessed it, originally convents dating back to the 12th and 13th centuries.

Royal roosting South of Amalfi, high atop the cliffs of the coast is a little gem of a town called Ravello. Famous for its almost unrivaled view, its idyllic atmosphere is enhanced with color-drenched gardens, winding roads and paths lined with flowers and scented by lemon trees. And in the midst of all this romantic beauty, Ravello offers the Hotel Caruso Belvedere—an Italian castle that is guaranteed to get your marriage off to a royal start.

But no matter where you choose to honeymoon in Italy, you're sure to be charmed and disarmed by this most romantic of all countries. For further information see your travel agent or contact the Italian Government Travel Office, 430 Fifth Avenue, N.Y., N.Y. 10020.
