Second Georgetown family to set sail

By MAGGIE HANNAH
Herald staff writer

While the Rattenbury family of Ewing Street are just beginning the long haul of getting their 35-ft. steel-hulled yacht in the ocean, the Hughes family of Stockman Crescent reached the end of three years of construction on a similar-size fiberglass yacht Monday when it was taken away to a berth at the National Yacht Club on the Toronto waterfront.

Martin and Glenda Hughes' vessel completion is even more a product of their own creation than what the average boat builder produces because Mr. Hughes molded the fiberglass hull himself, as well as finishing off the interior portion.

He bought the mold from an American firm and had it shipped to a firm near Toronto which allowed him to rent space to build his hull.

Originally the Hughes intended to use their yacht as a model to interest other boat lovers in fiberglass yachts which Mr. Hughes would build for them. He would mold the hulls for them at a kit price and give them help and advice on how to finish the boat themselves. A general rule of thumb on the cost of such craft is $1,000 to $1,200 per running foot but this can be cut in half by doing the finishing yourself, Mrs. Hughes says.

Mr. Hughes sells research and development equipment to hospitals but he's handy with tools and meticulous and thus managed to do all the finishing work himself, his wife says.

Mrs. Hughes' brother, Murray Barrett, a Toronto publisher, and his wife and family are co-owners of the boat and will be using it during the winter if their plans are fulfilled. The Hughes will use it during the spring vacation period and both families will use it during the summer. Mrs. Hughes says they hope eventually to sail the Caribbean but for now they have no plans for a world cruise.

Even their trip to the Caribbean will depend on how their craft suits them and how well they adjust to life afloat, Mrs. Hughes points out. They will be cruising Lake Ontario during the summer to find this out and then they will decide if they go ahead and make the jaunt to warmer spots some time.

Their 8-year-old son Chris and their 7-year-old daughter Vicki have done very little sailing and so their adaptability must be tested.

Mrs. Hughes says she did a little pleasure sailing before her marriage but her husband began sailing in his teens in Belleville and raced on Lake Ontario after he moved to Toronto. He was born in the Channel Islands.

Like the Rattenburys' Mrs. Hughes says they too had their share of curious drivers as they worked on their boat. Since Stockman is a fairly quiet street they weren't worried about drivers colliding with each other but they did wonder about the safety of a lamp post nearby as several drivers narrowly missed it and wound up on the edge of a lawn during their efforts to see what was going on.

While the Rattenburys prefer the strength of a steel hull for their craft, the Hughes chose fiberglass because it is lighter and by comparison to steel or concrete easier to work with. Mr. Hughes says he is still interested in molding a hull for prospective boat owners but the finishing off of the first model was important to him as a first step.

"Most people say they want to see what the finished product looks like before they order one," he says, "so we had to finish number one first."

The completion weighs eight tons and has a 30-horsepower engine and sails. It sleeps seven.

GRADUATION

The Pine Valley Square Dance Club of Norval held its graduation dance in Stewarttown school Wednesday evening for the 20 members who completed the year of fun and instruction. Theima and Ken Hearnese were among the members receiving certificates from club president Earl McArthur during the evening. The club will be running again in the fall, Mr. MacArthur says, and a beginners group will be set up for new members as well as an intermediate group for this year's grads.

GETTING READY

Georgetown Lion club member Howard Murphy decorates a vacant store window on Main street with prizes which will be awarded May 13 at the annual Lion's Windfall night. The prizes - sleeping bags, barbecues, luggage, TV, 10 speed bikes, golf clubs, fishing tackle, tennis racquets, fire extinguishers, a chain saw - are valued at about $3,000.

Fire report

A pot of grease left unattended on a stove at 31 McIntyre Cres. Georgetown caused approximately $4,000 damage to the home last Wednesday.

Deputy fire chief Bob Hyde says firefighters were called in at 5:43 p.m. but there was little fire to battle. Most of the damage was caused by the smoke.

Firefighters were also called to a grass fire just after 8 p.m. Tuesday evening on lot 28 Concession 10. There was no damage.

Things at the Church seem to be shaping up in readiness for the 100th Anniversary next Sunday May 7th.

Beautiful new light fixtures have been installed in the sanctuary and some renovating done in the basement.

Close to 300 people are expected as former worshippers, now living elsewhere have been invited, also past ministers will say a few words during the social time after lunch.

This anniversary service will be at 11 a.m.

Rev. Stiles sermon on Sunday, was taken from The Parable of the Brown Paper Bag. The lesson taken from this parable was, As we all have burdens of one kind or another, but leave them at the Church. Mr. Paul Schwartz sang a beautiful solo which added much to the service.

Teachers' being on Strike at Pembroke has given students a holiday they did not particularly want at this time of the year but it has given one student Stephen Garton an opportunity to visit relatives in Georgetown and Ballinafad.

Ballinafad district news

Stephen who will be 17 on Sunday is spending some time with his Grandmother Mrs. Agnes McEnery.

We are pleased to report that our sick have improved. A.D. McEnery was able to return home from hospital last week. Mrs. Heta Shortill is expected to be able to leave the Georgetown Hospital this week and Grenfell Wright is convalescing at his home after his recent operation in Guelph Hospital. Mrs. Sharon Kanusk was under the weather and confined to her home for several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Shortill accompanied Mr. and Mrs. George Black to Scarborough Sunday afternoon where they were guests at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Reg Jackson for the Bride-to-be Mary Wilson.

Miss Nancy Shortill has finished her studies at York University for this term and is home for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Jamieson were visiting with Rev. and Mrs. Kelvin Johnston over the weekend at Sandy Cove Acres. They witnessed the Christening of the Johnston's first grandchild. Rev. Johnston officiated at the ceremony on Sunday.

John Pearson and boys, Mrs. Pearson, who was the former Beth McEnery was honouring her Dad along with husband and Grandsons by having a family gathering at their farm home. It was a birthday celebration, for Mr. McEnery.
