Performing arts school opens in fall

A school for Performing Arts opens in September 1978 in downtown Georgetown under the name Nornic Studio.

Enid Williams is administrator of this school and will also be teaching some courses. She expects to enlarge the vocal course in conjunction with the overall development of the school.

Born and reared in the Montreal area, Mrs. Williams has had formal voice training there and many years experience on the concert and musical comedy and opera stage. She has been a founding member of three musical groups, two of which are still going strong. One in Montreal still thrives after twenty-eight years together with The Abbey Players Limited in neighboring Brampton which has just won three awards after being nominated for six awards in the Association of Community Theatres Music and Drama Festival this year.

Theatre administration captured Mrs. Williams interest at an early age and now will be channeled into Nornic Studio with great zest. Production techniques is one of Mrs. Williams forte areas of achievement and she has produced shows for Georgetown Little Theatre and other groups in surrounding communities and many in La Bell Province.

Mrs. Williams is an ardent supporter of Georgetown Little Theatre, the Halton Arts Council and Georgetown Choral Society. She is a soloist with Knox Presbyterian Church, and an adult advisor for the Young People's group and members of the Women's Auxiliary of that church.

Bev Nicholas is artistic consultant for Nornic Studio and in partnership with Mrs. Williams all artistic drama studies will be under the supervision of Mr. Nicholas.

He is well known in this locale as a performer and director with Georgetown Little Theatre. He hails from the great rugby country of Wales and since arriving in Canada five years ago, he has contributed greatly to Canadian theatre growth and entertainment.

Mr. Nicholas is also a singer having won awards in Britain for many musical comedy roles. He also has been a recipient of awards for his dramatic performance and expertise as a director.

He has come before the public by way of the television media in Britain and has been featured on Canadian television with his able rendition of readings with a "velvet brown voice". Mr. Nicholas also performed on radio before coming to Canada.

As secretary for The Dolman Theatre, South Wales, he was instrumental in the early growth of this magnificent theatre which is a self-supporting theatrical enterprise. He also has produced many productions and acted as stage manager as well.

The Williams-Nicholas team look forward to encouraging youngsters through their new business venture, Nornic Studio. They will be promoting Canadian performers, developing awareness in the community of Canadian composers and writers, they will stimulate interest in fine arts and handicrafts together with offering classical drama and music within the realms of Nornic Studio.

Theatre season released

The Georgetown Little Theatre has set the dates for the performances of the 1978-79 season.

The group has also decided to bring curtain time forward, and next season, all performances will begin at 8 p.m. instead of 8:30.

The season's first production will be "Hape of the Bell" which will run from October 18 to 21. "Cinderella" will be presented on December 7, 8, 9 and 10. There will be a 4:30 p.m. performance on December 10 which will be held at 4:30 p.m. "When We Are Married" will be presented on February 28, March 1, 2 and 3. "All Summer Long" will be presented on April 25, 26, 27 and 28.

"Cinderella", which is the Christmas production for next season, has been removed from the season ticket. In the past, there has been confusion caused by the uncertain number of seats being used for this play by season ticket holders.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am not a celebrity - I'm a police officer in Santa Barbara - but I'll wager that I am pestered by strangers in restaurants as much as you are. I often eat out in uniform of course while on duty. I can't count the times I've been interrupted by citizens who think an officer's "Code 7" time is the perfect opportunity to report a neighbor who is smoking marijuana or inquire about the technicalities of transferring title on his 1962 Buick. Some people actually pull up a chair and "settle in."

Recently a fellow insisted that I leave my meal and go help him start his car. When I said no, he got mad. I am also expected to know the ski conditions at any given moment at Broken Fenner Valley. Sorry I do not.

I know of no police officer who wouldn't leave his meal to help a person in distress, but please, Ann, tell your readers that a cop needs peace and privacy while eating, just like anyone else. Indigestion in California.

Dear Ann: I can truthfully say I don't have the problem. People often speak to me in restaurants (I don't consider this an intrusion), but no body has ever pulled up a chair. May be it's because my salary isn't paid by their tax dollars.

Dear Ann Landers: I hear the book "Himself!" by Gene Kennedy is the real life story of Mayor Daley's life. Something about that book bothers me. Ann.

I've heard people say the author smuggled a tape recorder into all sorts of places where they were not allowed. What's more, the people being interviewed didn't know they were being taped, which is how Gene Kennedy got so much personal inside stuff. If this is true I don't think much of the man's ethics.

Will you please clear this up for me as soon as possible? - I Also Live in Bridgeport

Dear Bridgeport: Gene Kennedy did not smuggle a tape recorder anywhere. In fact, he never uses a tape recorder. He takes all his notes in longhand.

I read "Himself!" last week and was fascinated by this heartwarming story of Ilzoner. The pictures are fabulous. Dick Daley was a consummate politician and a multi-faceted son of Erin. Kennedy captures it all in a way that kept me riveted through the last page. Only an Irishman could have written this spectacular book - and I'm glad he did.

Dear Ann: Please tell me why every man I've had the rotten luck to meet these past two years considers all widows and divorcees a candidate for the bedroom. Is there a man left who will take a lady to dinner and not expect repayment in the form of overnight housing and breakfast in the morning?

I've been called prudish, archaic, mid-Victorian, masochistic and a lesbian because I'm not interested in extramarital sex. And I've heard every line imaginable, but the one I got last night was unique. What do you think of a man who offers to "take the sadness out of your eyes"? - No Deal Here

Dear N.D.: "Mr. Sweet Talk" is no doubt looking to put a little gladness into his own.

To answer your question - yes, there are some decent men around. You just haven't met one yet. Be patient (and alert). A good man is well worth waiting for.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious, - lovely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity". Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

As keenly enthusiastic residents of Georgetown, with a deep awareness of the simplicity of life-style, the healthy activities this community provides and the close knit interaction between all aspects of the town, they both look forward to putting down roots and anticipate Nornic Studio will be part of the potential growth of Georgetown.

Registrations accepted before July 1st will benefit from a 10 per cent discount. Classes begin Sept. 16. These courses will be held at Knox Presbyterian Church, Main and Church Streets offering a morning and afternoon class in semester of 10 lessons each. Nornic Studio announces the beginning of the company year by promoting the presentation of "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris", by Abbey Players Limited at the McLaughlin Road Sheridan College campus.

Tickets are $5, and the bar facilities begin at 7 p.m. with curtain at 8:30 p.m. This is a beautifully moving production which spans the many experiences of life, touching on joy, pathos, cynicism and humour. Please call 877-0702 evenings for tickets.

Success can be overlooked

By SUSAN DE FACENDIS

What is success? - And what do we need in life to make us feel successful?

I suppose wealth, power and prestige have their place in the scheme of things, but possibly due to having been born into the everyday working world, or maybe just because I am a woman, such things are out of my realm and do not, for me, form a serious part of life.

Certainly it is nice to imagine having just enough money to afford that long dreamed of trip. That perfect, fantasy holiday, every minute details of which you have planned a thousand times during the mundane hours of housework, come true.

And who has not envisioned the thrill of being a big lottery winner and replacing every stick of child-battered, worn-out furniture in one glorious spending spree?

However, if the holiday is to remain just a remote possibility and winning a lottery is not much more than illusion, what is it that makes us continue to scramble through each day? Basically I believe it is the commitment of seeing a job through to the end and saying: "I did the best of which I was capable", and savouring the satisfaction of that knowledge.

Success is in the feeling of well-being during times of shared laughter; watching a summer sunset from a warm sandy beach; knowing you helped a friend through a time of trouble and watching your children mature into people whose company you enjoy.

It is appreciating a moment of peace during a backyard barbecue, between the piercing shrieks of "Mom, there's a bug in my potatoes!" and "Dad, the steak is burning!"

It is being able to calmly enjoy the total happiness of a small child splashing in and out of a deep mud puddle in the springtime, simply because he is not your child, and success is when the office typewriter ribbon does not expire during that last rush letter at two minutes before five o'clock.

It is when, late on the eve of Mother's Day, long after store closing time, your husband and son in sudden realization glare at each other: "You told me it was next week!" "I never did! I thought it was in July."

Then Louisa getting uptight because she is making my gift in school shop class and it still isn't finished, and Teresa bursting into tears.

"I planted you a seed at school and it didn't grow, and then I made you an owl and herdy old Andrew knocked the head off and now I don't have anything for you at all."

And success is in you not caring at all about gifts, because you know, that for them, Mother's Day is not just one day but the other 364 too, when they care, depend upon and love you just as much.

Success? Sometimes it is so simple you can almost overlook it.
