

Vandals strike at Moore Park

Vandals broke into the Firestone Store in Moore Park July 10 and caused about $400 in damage to equipment in the store.

The suspects broke a door, callipers on an alignment rack and a battery charger. It is unknown at this time whether anything was taken.

A second break-in the same night took place at Harp's Meat and Delicatessen, also located in the Moore Park plaza. Someone climbed through a makeshift shed behind the store, and broke the door and lock leading to the store. The vandals were not able to get into the store, and nothing appears to have been taken.

Burglars broke into the Mc-

Gibbon Hotel last week forcing open the office door and rifling through the drawers. A fuse box in the hallway was forced open and keys were taken. Three other rooms were entered and a penknife and a burner have been reported missing.

A Cleveholm Drive resident reported the grass had been set on fire near the CN tracks north of his home. He observed youths in the area throwing stones at passing trains.

A gas engine, single cylinder, from a cement mixer was stolen from the Elio Dallars Construction Company. The cement mixer was at a site on Cleveholm Drive. The value of the engine is estimated at $300.

Vandals removed the cover from a Co-Op gas pump at the rear of the Gain Gas Bar. They also pulled out the electrical wires, thus rendering the pump inoperative. The cap of the gas tank was also taken.

A window was broken at Alec Johnson Raptor, 2 Mill Street east, July 12. Several youths were observed at that corner, pushing and shoving.

A woman living on Chelvin Drive reports that while she was cutting the lawn, she noticed the front door of her house was open. When she went inside, she found a young boy inside. He said he had just wanted to use her washroom. After he left, she discovered that drawers and cabinets had been opened, but nothing appears to be missing. The name and address the youth gave were investigated, and were found to have been false.

A man reported parking his milk truck behind the Becker's Milk Store on Queen Street. While he was out of the truck, a youth entered the store with five milk jugs to be returned, and collected the deposit for them. When the man returned to his truck, he found that five jugs had been taken from it.

While on patrol, a police officer observed a broken window at the front door of Hibel Caffure which is located in the Georgetown Market. On investigation, the officer found that burglars had been inside and taken $8 to $10 worth of quarters. Nothing else has been reported missing at that time.

Tree brown? It may be starving

If the leaves on your trees look bleached and yellow when they should be lush and green, watch out! It's a sign they may literally be starving for nutrients and suffering from chlorosis.

Chlorosis is the uniform yellowing of leaves resulting from lack of chlorophyll, the green pigment responsible for the production of food. The loss of the green coloring matter reduces the efficiency of the leaf in manufacturing food and can lead to reduced vigor, stunting and the eventual death of your tree.

You can tell if one of your trees is affected with chlorosis. First, the leaves turn uniformly yellowish-green, or they may remain green along the veins but turn yellow in the intravascular areas. Terminal growth of twigs is small and the tree is generally stunted. Unless the condition is corrected, whole branches or the entire tree may eventually die.

According to Dr. Roger Funk, Director of Research for The Davey Tree Expert Company, iron deficiency chlorosis of trees growing in alkaline soils has been a problem in many regions of the country for decades.

"Iron chlorosis of many shade trees, especially pin oak, sweet gum, white pine, and white oak is apparently associated with nonavailability of iron rather than with lack of the element," Dr. Funk said. "Iron may be present in the soil, but in a form that cannot be absorbed by the tree."

Treatments recommended for iron deficiency chlorosis usually involve the application of iron compounds as soil applications or trunk implantations with iron compound capsules.

"Historically the most common treatment has been soil applications of iron and/or acidifying compounds," Dr. Funk said. "In 1950, chelated (pronounced key-late) iron was introduced and gradually has replaced other forms of iron as a soil additive. Chelating agents are organic compounds that surround the iron and hold it in water-soluble form so it is readily absorbed by the tree."

In some species, injections or implantations of iron compounds into the trunks of trees have effectively corrected iron chlorosis for two or more years.

"Don't expect any chlorosis treatment—soil or injection—to give permanent results," Dr. Funk emphasized. "Either treatment may have to be repeated each year or two to keep your tree supplied with iron and in good growing condition."
