

Council to delete names in minutes

Target for vandals

Water towers are a popular target for vandals, right up there with schools. The water tower on the top of the hill going into Norval was defaced shortly after it was built, and the tower on Mountainview Road has also been vandalised. The water tower in Erin was another recent target and the residents offered a reward to discover those responsible.

The recorded minutes of town council and committee meetings will appear in a much shorter format in future as a result of a planning board recommendation accepted by council Tuesday night.

In the interest of saving paper and time spent on paperwork, the board and council voted to have only committee recommendations recorded. Council also rejected a suggestion that the names of those who move and second motions should be recorded as well.

The decision was made despite objections from Mayor Tom Hill and several councillors, who felt the lengthy minutes would help members rev-low discussions at past meetings. Coun. Pat McKenzie, however, pointed out that if minutes are to be recorded at all, they should be recorded in their entirety out of fairness to all members. Such a move, he warned, would produce "reams of notes" that would have to be re-produced in the minutes.
