Our writer revisits "the big, bad city"

By Gerry Landsborough
Herald columnist

In my late 20's I decided that the bustle and bustle of the big city just wasn't for me. I was born and raised in Toronto and since I opted for quiet country living I have rarely entered the downtown core of the city.

The last few weekends have found me back in T.O. and I'm nothing short of amazed at the changes that have sprung up everywhere in the past fifteen years. After nearly two years I finally decided to meet the new Eaton Centre face to face. The only word I can use that adequately fits is "big" - very, very big.

As a young girl a trip "downtown" meant going to Eaton's and Simpson's. In the basement Annex there was a walkway between the two stores and it was never passed without buying a hot ice cream waffle. The aroma from that stand spread up and down the walkway tantalizing the taste buds until you were forced to indulge.

VIEWPOINT

THINGS CHANGED

With the new Centre things have changed. The Annex is now on the 7th floor of Eaton's and I considered it a definite experience just in getting there. Yonge Street has a pulse and a heartbeat of its own. Stand for 20 minutes on any downtown corner of Yonge and every segment of society will pass you by.

Hawkers and beggars are everywhere - with a wino or two thrown here and there just for atmosphere.

People walk five and six abreast and it reminds me of the midway at the Exhibition. When we hear rumbblings of world over population it registers but never with the impact that a few hours on Yonge Street does. You wonder where all the people come from and, stepping along so lively, where they are all headed.

I couldn't believe the variety of people that passed by, some so drizzen that along with the dozens of languages being spoken I had the feeling that I was almost in a foreign land. For the most part I was.

In terms of fashion it was like entering a time machine - you could gaze at the 20's, 30's, 40's, 50's, etc. - you name it they wore it. Racon coats and tatty furs really big with the younger set high padded shoulders on velvet jackets a tam on the head and the highest heels that could be walked upon. Whatever the "look" it was to be seen on Yonge Street.

U. of Waterloo considers courses

The University of Waterloo is conducting a survey to determine if there is sufficient interest in Hutton Hills to conduct university courses in the area.

Courses could be offered in Georgetown or Acton, or both, as early as next September, provided sufficient interest is shown in the survey results. The survey forms are available in the libraries, and must be complete and returned to the library by January 15. The purpose of the survey is to

GRADUATE

JOHN CRAWFORD

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Crawford of Hutton Hills (Georgetown), Ontario, (formerly of Hamilton) are pleased to announce the graduation of their son, John Crawford, from the University of Western Ontario with the Master of Science Degree in Microbiology and Immunology. John holds an Honours Bachelor of Science Degree, also, from the University of Western Ontario.

A former graduate of Cathedral (Boys') High School in Hamilton, as well as Hamilton Teachers' College, John is attending Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan, at the present time. At the College of Human Medicine, his research toward the attainment of double Doctorate Degrees within the Departments of Pathology and Neuroscience involves an investigation of neuromuscular disease.

BISHOP'S TURKEY SHOOT

Kent Green, 14, of RRA Georgetown takes aim Saturday at the Georgetown Firefighters Turkey Shoot, held at Bishop's Farm, north of Glen Williams.

YOUR WEEK AHEAD By DAMIS

- ARIES At this time, you need a lot of understanding. A member of the opposite sex's attitude might disturb you.
- TAURUS Resist the urge to strike back at a bit of sarcasm going on around you. Diplomacy will be very effective with your associates.
- GEMINI Forget about new friends at this time. Devote more time to old friends and business associates. Consolidation is important.
- MOONCHILD You rarely feel courage, but cosmic influences now build your confidence. You are heading toward solid goals.
- LEO Mercenary appeasement, for sure! A gift or so, here. And a dollar or so, there, will go a long, long way.
- VIRGO You have become a little too eager. You are stepping on someone's toes - who happens to be in authority.
- LIBRA According to stellar patterns, there is an unusual message due. Most members of your sign should receive an interesting phone call.
- SCORPIO Some Scorpio's with extreme reluctance, will be forced to cut hair! A decision facing you on the opposite sex is apparent.
- SAGITTARIUS Punctuality will not be one of your strong points. Lethargy and indifference are dominating. You can't help it.
- CAPRICORN Demands on you this week will be more than you can handle. As a matter of fact, cool it!
- AQUARIUS Aggressive action puts you ahead of competition. When opportunity knocks - you must open the door.
- PISCES Success this time could go to your head. However, don't join the ranks of your enemies and become hard to get along with.

HIGH SCHOOL FLEA MARKET

Neil Parker and his brother, Trevor, had fun with a bowling game at a flea market at Georgetown District High School Saturday morning. The flea market was organized by students, who sold books, clothing, glassware, furniture and toys to careful bargain-hunters.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you said "Doris" (who gets organized by talking to herself) is perfectly sane. Now - can you tell me if my mother is? She doesn't talk to herself but she'll come up to me and say, "Well, I've washed the clothes, put the towels and bedsheets away, done the dishes and now I'll weed the garden and later I should sit myself down and write letters to the family."

Mom has been rattling on like this for years but it seems to be happening a lot more lately. It really annoys me - especially when I'm trying to do my homework.

My brother, who is in college, says she used to do this to him, but it never got on his nerves the way it does mine. Do you think our mother is crazy? - Julie.

Dear Julie: The woman is hopelessly insane and unquestionably dangerous. She should be removed from society at once - before she commits some heinous crime, like interrupting your train of thought.

Kids like you make me sick. I'd give anything if my mother was around to "annoy" me like that. Clip this column and hang on to it. One day you'll see what I mean.

Dear Ann Landers: You are OK most of the time, but you could improve your advice to women who go with a guy for four or five years and can't get him to make it legal.

A woman in this spot needs a foolproof way to find out if the fellow will ever marry her, or if he's worth marrying at all - and I know how to do it. Tell him you're pregnant! If he says the baby can't be his and then starts to accuse you of all sorts of junk, or if he flies into a rage and yells at you for being "stupid", or if he offers you money and tells you to get out of town, you'll know you've been wasting your time on a heel.

If he shows concern (or maybe even joy) and says, "We'll get married right away," tell him in a few days you made a mistake.

This plan is a darned good one. It worked for me so don't knock it. - Exhibit A

Dear Exhibit: Your strategy might separate the heroes from the bums but I'm not endorsing it. If a woman has to pull that routine to find out if her sweetheart is sincere, something is rotten in Denmark - and other places as well.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism - Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60617.
