Thoughts about Christmastime

Gerry Landsborough

Christmustime that magical wonderful, heart warming time of year. Christmas can mean so many different things to so many different kinds of people. Lifestyles have changed drastically over the past 20 years and people now spend Christmas in every conceiveable manner. Me, well I prefer the traditional approach a great size of a turkey lots of stuffing and of course cranberries, decorations throughout the house, big trees (In all likelihood overdecorated) and presents for everyone. Christmas to me is a feeling, people who seem caught up in the ways of the world open their hearts at Christmastime and to me that's part of the Christmas magle. FRESH SNOW I love freshly fallen soft white snow glistening from everywhere. You can look through a window and it appears as though the rest of the world has gone on vacation everything the eye can see is cloaked in white, it gives a look of quiet as though the world had stopped for a moment or two. You can never think of snow in a fast tempo - even the way it appears to float to the ground on those beautiful days of soft falling snowflakes - it's the Lord's own brand of trang-

Christmastime and snow naturally seem to go together, and I must admit that unless it's a "white Christmas" I usually feel a little cheated. Another joy of Christmastime are the wonderful smells. Recently there seems to be a return to a "real" Christmas tree. The artificial wonders have seen their day and even ecologically minded folks can rnjoy the real thing thanks to the tree farms where trees are grown specifically for Christmas. Of course a "real tree" means that wonderful fragrance of pine and spruce that fills the house - a special kind of Christmastime smell. Logs burning in the fireplace is another warm smell and feeling, the crackling and snapping of the logs give a feeling of good cheer that very few seem able to Ignore. I like the smell of Christmas dinner cooking away - the plum pudding and sauce and all the other wonderful holiday good-

OPEN GIFTS Everyone seems to be able to recapture a little bit of childhood at Christmastime - just took at the way the old folks open their gifts - all the anticipation of dozens and dozens of past Christmas mornings right back to childhood bubble up in the tearing of the wrapping paper and the tug-ging off of the ribbons. Cries of "oh you shouldn't have" while unsaid words of "I'm so glad you remembered me" are part and parcel of thousands and thousands of livingrooms as

I like the sounds of Christmastime - of Bing Crosby and White Christmas of the carols of Jingle Bells and Deck-the Halls and after the gifts and the feast of the special quiet of Silent Night.

children and the years slip back to other Christmas mornings when chubby hands banged on drums and wrestled with Christmas stockings to get all the goodies out as quickly as possible.

SPECIAL PART Of course a very special part of Christmas is that long ago message of "love" that came from the humblest of homes. It began with a tiny babe lying in a bed of straw who grew to leave the world a message of love for our fellowman that has survived against overwhelming odds. Such a simple few words - "to love your neighbour as yourself." Everyone seems to have a different interpretation of love, some seem to believe that you can pick and choose and of course this picking and choosing results in war the farthest thing imaginable from love thy neighbour as thyself. One of the blessings of Christmastime is that we can stop for a moment and reflect on how fortunate we are - we who enjoy a Christmas feast, gifts under our tree, and the warmth of our loved ones fortunate we are indeed.

From our house to yours the happiest of Christmases - may whatever is yours to share be given in love and may the bounty of that love set every table a feast and every heart filled to the brim and may the Lord case your burdens whatever they may be in the New Year and give you strength to CUFFY OR . . .

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

GLEN ACTIVITY DAY

Laurie Geneau and Steven Murray were in a group which was making decorations for their Christmas trees. The decorations were made of dough, which was hardened, and dried, and the students colored it with magic markers to get them ready to hang on the tree.

Resurfacing concerns resident

A Byron Street homeowner's concern over the town's priorities for road resurfacing has led town council to refer his letter to municipal staff for further consideration during budget planning next spring.

Coun. Mike Armstrong told council Monday night that the town invariably follows general guidelines set out in its Roads Need Study for the repaying or reconstruction of roads, but acknowledged that the final priority decision always rests with council. He called the letter from Ed Peter a "valid request".

The Byron Street, Georgetown, resident noted that council contains several new faces as well as a new leader and expressed hope that there will be "a clear cut priority estab-

The proposal, which would require an amendment to the zoning bylaw, would see solid waste from north Halton deposited at the Concession 8 transfer station before being, 6 taken to regional landfill sites elsewhere to the south.

The operation would be carried out adjacent to an existing house and barn on the 272-foot long property. Specially-built would be constructed to handle the garbage as it is being trucked into the site. Mr. Howitt pointed out that there would be "some financial advantage to the community? if the proposal were apas far as traffic is concerned, and therefore not necessary, but roads in this municipality are being given the runaround," Mr. Peters complained.

"The fiasco in regard to the failure to complete the roads from Highway 7 to the newly constructed Prince Charles Drive is surely not to the credit of this year's council," he added, "but it is hoped that this work, along with the areas south of this work will be carried out next year."
